STOLEN PLANS.

An American Army Officer in Trouble at Paris.

Charged With Playing the Spy for Germany and Italy.

He Admits Obtaining Plans of the French Defenses.

Other Foreign News—An Assault on Gladstone Which May Cost Him an Eye—

"Buffalo Bill's" Show Performs Before Royalty.

By Telegram to The Times.

PARIS, June 25.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] A clerk in the Navy Department, who was arrested yesterday, charged with conveying documents relative to French defenses to Germany and Italy, declared that Capt. Henry D. Borup, of the Ordnance Bureau of the United States Army, who is military attache of the American legation here, bought the plans of defenses and communicated them to Germany and Italy.

T. Jefferson Coolidge, the American Minister, has written a formal letter to Capt. Borup in regard to the charge made against him by Grenier, the clerk.

Capt. Borup denies that he communicated anything to Germany or Italy. He will not say whether he sent the documents to Washington, but admits that Grenier gave him certain documents. His response to Coolidge's demands for an explanation is an emphatic protest against the charge that he communicated anything to Germany or Italy.

Grenier was arrested as he was entering Borup's residence. The officers did not express surprise at Borup's connection with the affair. They declare he has been under suspicion for months, but that they had no positive proof which would warrant them in making charges against him.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Secretary Elikins and Acting Secretary Wharton each said this evening that they had no information whatever in regard to the charge that Capt. Borup had communicated military information to Paris, had given information concerning French defenses to Germany and Italy.

GLADSTONE ASSAILED.

Struck in the Eye by a Missile Thrown by a Woman.

LONDON, June 25.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] Gladstone, while driving through Chelsea today, attended a meeting of the Liberal Club, was struck by a flying missile from the crowd. He announced his determination to attend the meeting regardless of the accident and was cheered lustily by the crowd who witnessed the deed. The motive of the stone-thrower is not known.

It is ascertained that the guilty person is a woman and the missile a large piece of hard gingerbread. When Gladstone arrived at the club two doctors were immediately summoned. They made a careful examination and found the injured eye considerably inflamed. In spite of the disturbing incident Gladstone made a spirited speech which was applauded throughout, and at the close the speaker received an ovation. In the course of his remarks Gladstone showed that there was no doubt in his mind that the person who wounded him had done so from malice. He said that the opponents of the Liberals were fighting them with the weapons of intimidation, an invention of religious bigotry. He said: "For the first time in our history a prime minister is a fire brand in the land."

When he finished speaking he found his eye had become very painful and tender. Another examination was made and it was found that the missile had entered the eye and was lodged in the orbit. The oculist states that there is a large abrasion at the corner of the eye, extending to the edge of the pupil. He says the greatest care will be necessary to prevent serious and permanent injury to the organ. The wound on Gladstone's nose bled freely. The woman who threw the missile was recognized as the wife of an artisan. She has not yet been arrested, but the police are on her trail and expect soon to have her in custody.

BLACKMAIL AND MURDER.

Starting Testimony Brought Out at an Inquest in London.

LONDON, June 25.—[By The Associated Press.] The inquest into the death of Matilda Clover, who there strong suspicion met death by poison administered by Thomas Neill, was continued today. Among other witnesses was Miss Laura Sabatini, whose testimony caused a sensation.

She said that Neill asked her to marry him. She accepted him. He made a will in her favor. Subsequently he induced her to write blackmailing letters signed W. H. Murray. She asked him why he demanded such a large sum in the case of Dr. Harper, £15,000, and why he made such terrible charges. The reply was, "I'll tell you some day." Afterward he got her to write letters signed "Murray," accusing certain persons of poisoning Alice Marsh and Emma Shrivell with strychnine and offering to suppress evidence supporting the accusations in the event of the payment of a certain sum of money.

Neill's landlady deposed that at the time of the Russell divorce case Neill asked her to take a letter to Lambeth Road, where Miss Clover resided, saying he believed there was a girl there who had been poisoned. He wanted to ascertain if she were dead, adding that he believed Lord Russell poisoned her.

"BUFFALO BILL" HONORED.

His Show Exhibits Before Queen Victoria at Windsor.

LONDON, June 25.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] When "Buffalo Bill's" troupe arrived at Windsor today they were greeted by a great crowd. Maj. Gen. McNeill met them and informed Cody that the Queen desired to view from her window the entry of the troupe into the arena. So "Buffalo Bill," at the head of the motley procession, paraded under the Queen's windows, and after performing several maneuvers, proceeded to the place selected for the exhibition. The arena, which faced the east terrace, was a large open space. The ground was inclosed by a small pavilion, surrounded by a high wall, and the space on either side were crowded with aristocratic personages.

Promptly at the hour fixed for the show the Queen came forth from the castle, attended by Princess Beatrice and her children and Prince Christian. The Queen was in the best of humor, and appeared greatly interested in the many strange sights she witnessed.

At the end of the performance, "Buffalo Bill" and Maj. Burke were presented to her. She complimented "Buffalo Bill" very highly and presented him with a large gold seal, containing her monogram, surrounded by the royal motto. She gave Salisbury a handsome scarf pin, consisting of her initials, studded with diamonds and surrounded by an imperial crown.

A Tumult at Matta's Funeral.

NEW YORK, June 25.—The Herald's Valparaiso dispatch dated yesterday says: "The funeral ceremonies over the dead ex-Minister of Foreign Affairs, Señor Manuel Antonio Matta were of the most imposing character. While the funeral cortege was passing a number of ex-officers of Balmaceda's army began to shout 'Down with Matta' and other opprobrious epithets. The people were aroused to a state of frenzy by this action and the police had difficulty in restraining them."

The De Mores-Mayer Duel.

PARIS, June 25.—In the Deputies today Dreyfus questioned Dr. Freycinet, Minister of War, concerning duels. The minister replying expressed regret over the tragic result of the duel between De Mores and Capt. Mayer and condemned the newspaper polemics which led to the fatal encounter. The government, he declared, would see that officers were respected. The latter declared a resolution approving the declarations made by Dr. Freycinet.

Exposing a Royal Reprobate.

NEW YORK, June 25.—A London special says: "A startling series of letters are about to be sold at auction. The letters describe the private life of His Royal Highness, Prince Edward, Duke of Kent and father of Queen Victoria. They were written by Baron Wagonheim, the Prince's tutor, and represent His Royal Highness not only as a man of gallant life, but as an absolute libertine, and are substantiated by the most minute details."

Jackson's Arm in a Sling.

NEW YORK, June 25.—A special London cable to the World says: "Peter Jackson did not find out until this week that he broke a bone in his right hand while fighting Slavin recently. This pained him so much last Tuesday that he could not shake hands. He consulted a doctor, who said he had broken a bone in the wrist. Jackson now carries his arm in a sling."

American Pork All Right.

PARIS, June 25.—Commissioner Dulos has returned from the United States where he was sent by the Minister of Husbandry to study the pork trade. Dulos presented a flattering report as to the completeness of the precautionary measures taken by the American Department of Agriculture, and says more care is hardly possible.

Bismarck's Little Speech.

MUNICH, June 25.—Prince Bismarck in his speech at the Rathaus tonight expressed the duty of every section of the empire to foster the friendship of Austria and the security of the southern and eastern frontiers. At nightfall the Prince was serenaded by 8000 students.

Cholera Spreading.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 25.—The governor of Samarcand has issued a warning to travelers of an outbreak of cholera in that city. The epidemic of cholera in Central Asia threatens to spread like wild fire.

An American Wheelman's Victory.

LONDON, June 25.—At Leeds today Arthur Zimmerman, an American wheelman, won the five-mile championship bicycle race. Zimmerman also won the mile championship race.

Bad Harvest Outlook in Russia.

LONDON, June 25.—A dispatch to the Times from St. Petersburg says that the harvest prospects in the Russian provinces are almost hopeless.

Theater Burned.

LONDON, June 25.—The Theater Royal, at Birkenhead, was burned last night. The audience had left the house before the fire broke out.

COLD WATER PARTY.

Prohibitionists Preparing for the National Convention at Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, June 25.—[By The Associated Press.] The National Prohibition Convention, which meets in this city Wednesday, June 29, bids fair to outstrip its two predecessors at Minneapolis and Chicago in size. The total delegate list is 1191, and as many alternates. The National Committee of the party opened headquarters this afternoon at the Grand Hotel. A mass-meeting has been arranged for tomorrow afternoon as a preliminary. St. John peremptorily declines to permit the use of his name for Presidential nominee. The next man suggested is Gen. John Bidwell of California.

Another Riot at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND (O.), June 25.—An attempt of the street-car people to run cars this afternoon resulted in another small riot. The disturbance was stopped by the police before any serious damage was done and the company will not try to run cars until Monday.

RUN IN MUD.

The American Derby Won by Carlsbad.

Zaldivar, the California Horse, Finishes a Good Second.

The Time Was Slow and the Track the Worst on Record.

Fifty Thousand Spectators at the Great Race—The Purse a Rich One, to the Winner—Other Turf Events.

By Telegram to The Times.

CHICAGO, June 25.—[By the Associated Press.] Five thousand persons of the wealthier classes filled the fine clubhouse at Washington Park today. Fifteen thousand more people packed the immense grand stand, and a gathering of nearly 80,000 more were crowded in the betting ring and swarming in the fields, when the great American Derby was won by Carlsbad in 3:04 1/4, the slowest time in which it has yet been run. The race was a good exhibition of game, sturdy racing in the worst going possible, and it was not speed, but bottom, which carried the day. Carlsbad showed a great stayer and along with the $17,800, which the purse netted him, K. A. Snygar has the knowledge that he has a horse that came clear through strong and fast, for Carlsbad led the field in the last mile, and in the stretch outran the speedy California horse, Zaldivar, who was handicapped by being forced into the worst part of the track.

The day opened clear and fine, after a season of wet weather which had dampened the hopes of the club managers. The track was as slow and heavy as water-soaked black mud could be. The horses were in the middle of the track almost to their fetlocks. In the stretch, close against the outer rail, the tramping of the crowd had made the track fairly hard. To this fact is largely due Carlsbad's beating Zaldivar, as the former's jockey rounded him into the turn close against the rail, forcing Zaldivar into the mud, where he was almost anchored when the home spurt came. The crowd began pouring into the gate long before the time set for the first race, and each incoming train and cable-car brought a mass of pleasure-seekers, while the Michigan avenue boulevard and other approaches were occupied by a line of magnificent turnouts.

The Derby was the third event and the great number of entries had dwindled last night to a field of twelve possible starters, to which one other addition was made this morning. Three withdrawals were made later, so that only ten horses faced the starter. Azra steadily ruled the favorite on his record, and many thought he would land first. The heavy track made many think well of Corrigan's Longfellow colt, with only 115 pounds on him and he was at equal choice in the books with Azra—5 to 2. Zaldivar and Galindo, two California horses, took a great deal of money at 6 to 1. Carlsbad was the winner, opened at 5 to 1 and then retired until 10 to 1 was offered just before the horses went to the post, while Azra's odds were forced down to 2 to 1, so he started a clean favorite, with Cicero, 3 to 1, second choice.

At the second attempt the horses got off well together. Chief Justice got the advantage of a lead, which he held for a short time. The others came in this order: Prince of Darkness, Azra, Carlsbad, Newton, Cicero, Galindo, Zaldivar, Prince Regent, and Bob Forrester brought up the rear. Carlsbad, once began to move up and at the head of the stretch had collared Zaldivar, who was contemplating some advance steps in our career that will result in the employment of an agency on the Pacific Slope. It has been our unshaken resolution to have the largest agency in the entire Southwest, and we expect to see that resolution fulfilled in money and in fact.

The People's party organ up at San José is called the Buzz Saw. The editor who has to do the most monkeying with it stands a poor chance.

The ladies of Stockton who have been trying industriously for weeks to interest leading men in getting up a San Joaquin county exhibit for the World's Fair have at last thrown up the job and quit disgusted.

Now that the people of San Bernardino county have voted down the Court-house bond proposition for a second time, they meet the threat of the Supervisors to levy a district tax for the purpose by a counter threat to divide the county. It is not a good plan to antagonize the will of the majority, as the San Bernardino Supervisors will learn if they live long enough.

"We do not say that Mr. Homer is a fraud," remarks the Stockton Mail. "for he may be a very well intentioned person, but if we wanted people to think we were a fraud, we would act just as he has acted." In these days of libel suits a newspaper cannot be too guarded in its utterances. There are ways of "getting there" just the same, as the Mail seems to know.

The recent characterization by the Boston Herald of the American flag as a "textile fabric" and of patriotism as "a middle stage in the development of mankind" is not suffered to be forgotten by the people whose national spirit it insulted. Congressman Lodge made it the text of a recent address at Charlestown, and his fervid repudiation of the Herald's false and noxious sentiments won the unstinted applause of his young hearers. Patriotism is not dead yet in the United States, thank God, and it is not going to die—at least not until the time comes for the Nation to go down in disgrace and dissolution.

A CIRCULAR has been issued by the Traffic Association of California endorsing the establishment of competing clipper and steamship lines between New York and San Francisco, and recommending support and cooperation against the old established lines. "It is simply a question of business," says the San Francisco Call. "The old lines have deserted from their allegiance to local interests and have, as it were, created insurrection in the minds of business men. Trust is destroyed in this friendship of the past and new enterprises deserve to be encouraged. Only by competition can the ancient oppressors of this Coast's hard won advantages be brought to terms. The thing that every business man should insist upon is competition along every outlet and route of transportation."

The Board of Lady Managers of the Columbian Exposition propose to compile the most complete record of woman's work ever given to the public. They will publish an encyclopedia, showing the advancement of women along all philanthropic and charitable lines and for intellectual, social, hygienic, industrial and moral form. To this end they request the local board to collect statistics of women's organizations embodying the following points: (1) name; (2) date of organization; (3) names of officers; (4) address of headquarters and corresponding secretary; (5) number of charter members; (6) present membership; (7) what are the aims of the society? (8) are there any educational features? (9) what are the sources of income; (10) annual expenditures; (11) how nearly self-supporting? (12) remarks. Answers to these queries from women's organizations in Southern California should be sent to Mrs. S. Hubbard, No. 1710 Temple street, Los Angeles.

Discussing the allegation that Mr. Cleveland is the most popular Democrat in the United States, as shown by the popular vote for him in 1888, in nine selected States, in increases in the popular vote for him over the vote of the same States in 1884, the Boston Journal explains that the Republican gains in the States named, with one exception, were greater than the Democratic gains. The Journal says:

The single exception was New Jersey. Taking the other States in their order, we find that in Connecticut Mr. Cleveland's plurality of 1284 in 1884 was reduced to 336 in 1888; in New York his plurality of 1047 in 1884 became a Republican plurality of 14,373 in 1888; in Indiana a Democratic plurality of 6427 at the earlier election became a Republican plurality of 2348 in 1888; in Virginia Mr. Cleveland's plurality of 6003 in 1884 was reduced to 1539 in 1888; in West Virginia his plurality dropped almost to the vanishing point, or from 4221 in 1884 to a barely 532 in 1888; in North Carolina his plurality fell from 17,884 to 13,118; and in Missouri he lost 5205 from his plurality. In the one exceptional State, New Jersey, he increased his lead by about 2700 votes. We respectfully warn our Democratic contemporaries that they would do well to beware of inviting comparisons between the vote of 1884 and 1888.

Important if True—Mr. Osborne a Bolter.

A newspaper published not a mile from San Pedro gives currency to the report that H. Z. Osborne, Collector of the port of Los Angeles, made the following statement:

I am for office and the spoils thereof, last and all the time. If I thought that Harrison were not likely to be elected, I would go back on him and espouse the cause of the man who could be provided I felt sure of his giving me an office. I am in a terrible quandary, and my hand is behind me. I think I shall vote a blank and then claim to belong to the side that wins.

If this report is true, and we see no reason to doubt it, Mr. Osborne is in a very questionable attitude. It is due the public that he take off the mask of a State Central Committeeman and appear in his true light as a partisan for revenue only.

As to the Express, it has never been anything but a fall to Mr. Osborne's kite, and its active opposition to any cause is to be courted. It is a negative quantity—a nothing—a hole in the air. Republicans have never given it more than a half support, and they will now refuse to subscribe sufficient funds to pay its delinquent rent. Let Mr. Osborne draw on his salary. The Federal brigade must go out of politics.

Auctioneers in the sanctum.
Earning his clothes and keep.
An editor waits on his fortunes.
Down by the awning deep.
One sells himself for a sixpence.
One barbers himself in trade.
And both are proper exemplars
Of the bread-and-butter brigade.
With an ardent thirst for office.
And a hungering greed of gain.
No fight to make for manhood.
No principles to maintain.
How they truckle and fawn and palaver.
How they crook the suppliant knee.
One prostrates himself in the sanctum.
The other falls down by the sea.
And which is the lower and meaner.

Can Cleveland Carry New York?

The Chicago convention treated the country to the remarkable spectacle of the nomination of a Presidential candidate against the solid vote of the delegation from his own State, and that action raised the question: Can a candidate, so nominated, carry his own State?

In 1884 the vote of New York City gave Cleveland 183,157, while Blaine received 90,093—a majority for Cleveland of 93,064.

In 1888, after Tammany had declared war upon Cleveland, the vote of New York City was Cleveland 162,626; Harrison 105,452; Cleveland's majority over Harrison 57,174—an increase of Cleveland's majority over vote of 1884. At the same time the increase of the Democratic vote was 20,469, over 20 per cent., and the increase of the Republican vote was 15,359, or a fraction over 15 per cent. This demonstrated that the Tammany opposition to Mr. Cleveland died when the convention adjourned, as it will certainly do this year. Although Tammany supported Gov. Hill he does not and never did affiliate with or belong to that organization.

In 1884 the Prohibitionists polled 25,001 votes and the Greenbackers 17,002, a total of 42,003. In 1888 the Prohibitionists polled 30,231, leaving about 12,000 of the scattering vote of 1884 to be absorbed by the Republicans and Democrats. No comparison can be made with the vote of 1891, as the total vote polled was 1,148,202, while in 1888 the total vote was 1,320,109, but the Prohibition vote of 1891 was 30,353, practically the same as in 1888, showing that under no condition has it affiliated with either the Republican or Democratic party, and probably never will. And it is also clear that the Democratic masses of New York and Brooklyn will remain subject to the commands of the managers, all of whom will work loyally for Cleveland.

But when we turn to the country—the territory above the Harlem and west of the Hudson, we find the source of opposition to Mr. Cleveland. The opponents of Mr. Harrison live in New York City, but they cannot injure him there. The opponents of Mr. Cleveland live outside of New York and Brooklyn, and can injure him, as they did in 1888. In 1884 Cleveland's vote above the river was 360,558, and Blaine's 419,494. In 1888 the Cleveland vote in the same territory was 390,655, a gain of 30,000 votes. Harrison's vote was 473,818, a gain of 55,000, a per cent. of gain almost double that of Mr. Cleveland's. A great deal of this gain was due to the fact that Conkling was not in the battle, and his forces turned to Harrison. But the danger to Cleveland lies in the fact that Hill's friends are in the country. In the campaign of 1888 Mr. Hill received $50,464, while Harrison had 648,759; Hill's majority over Harrison, 1708. Hill's friends over Cleveland in the same election, 14,707. With Hill and Cleveland on the same ticket in 1888, Hill ran nearly 15,000 votes ahead of Cleveland. Then there was every incentive for Hill's friends to vote for Cleveland, yet 15,000 of them refused to do so. This year, when Mr. Hill shelters himself beneath his tent, will his 15,000 warriors and their friends go out alone and battle for Mr. Cleveland? Not unless there are future conditions which cannot be now anticipated. If Mr. Cleveland attempts to placate that element he loses the mugwump element, consisting of 10,000 votes, as well as their financial support, which is immense. In Erie county (Buffalo) Harrison's majority over Cleveland was 2069, while Hill's majority over Cleveland was 3508, showing that at Cleveland's old home, with the Federal brigade under his own command, 1800 of Hill's friends would not vote for him. The same condition exists throughout the whole State of New York outside of Brooklyn and New York City. It is safe to estimate that no less than 30,000 Democratic voters will bolt Cleveland, and there is no place in sight now where he can recoup that loss from the Republicans.

Deliberate judgment, based upon full knowledge of all existing circumstances, is that Mr. Cleveland cannot carry New York, and if he is elected it must be by the votes of other States.

REPORTS from New York indicate that the stock market is virtually at a standstill. The uncertainty as to this year's crops throughout the country has much to do with the situation. It is difficult to form any even approximate estimate of the probable outcome of any one of the agricultural crops. This state of uncertainty affords an opportunity for speculation, and all sorts of contradictory reports are furnished to promote the ends of the operators. As to cotton, some information is forthcoming deserving of consideration: The report of the Department of Agriculture estimates the acreage as 10½ per cent. below that of last year, which suggests a more hopeful prospect for the South than has been entertained. The Government's weekly crop bulletin reports the condition of this crop as distinctly good in every State but Arkansas. As to the prospects of cereals, the past week's weather has somewhat improved the outlook. Reports suggest no doubt as to the chances for spring wheat. Winter wheat is doing better in large sections, but from some points the reports indicate injury from excessive rains and moisture; on the whole, however, it is still premature to venture on any comparative figures, though a fair crop cannot be said to rank outside the probabilities. With respect to corn, the chief uncertainty seems to be about the extent of the acreage, with considerable probability that it may fall materially below that of last year. The past week has shown a general return of the growing weather throughout the cereal belt, which, if continued, may finally bring good results out of a protracted bleak prospect.

An American gentleman who has just returned from a long stay in Great Britain says: The rampant free traders in England belong to the aristocratic classes and have settled incomes. The people who earn their living day by day by the sweat of their brow do not see how they have been or are being benefited by free trade, and among a great many there is a growing feeling of distrust. Lord Salisbury, when he made his protection speech, voiced the sentiment of the great struggling masses more than the Cobdenites would like to admit. It is becoming a serious question, but the aristocratic classes will continue for a time, at least, to keep up the pretense that free trade means prosperity, high wages and, in fact, everything which free-trade in England proposes.

The Democratic party, which claims to be the sole repository of democratic principles in the United States, is arrayed in this issue on the side of the classes against the masses. It is a question whose ramifications are as broad as the civilized world, and the tide of human progress has set against free trade everywhere. The Democrats are simply outside the channel of human progress.

The late Father Mollinger, according to popular belief, possessed a miraculous faculty of healing. But he showed no disposition to practice upon himself, and when he was prostrated by rupture of the stomach he called on the doctors in a conventional way, and, it may be added, died in the conventional manner. An Oakland exchange in commenting on this observes that it is quite a general practice (to resort to the regular school), with the various classes of faith healers, divine healers, Christian scientists, mind curers, metaphysical healers, clairvoyants and magnetic doctors. They do not live longer than other people or enjoy lives more exempt from sickness and pain. One of the first exponents in Oakland of the Boston cure, which teaches the art of mind cure, was a woman who stayed there a few weeks and then went to Southern California to die. Our exchange says:

The most noted "divine healer" by whom we have been visited in this city was so miserably septic on a voyage from Portland to San Francisco that he hung abjectly over the side of the ship, and was taken up by a few of the crew. A few very few of all these people claiming supernatural or abnormal powers to bestow health upon other people are healthy themselves. They seldom, you see, are one-eyed, strong-limbed, strong-lunged, clear-headed, robust, with vigorous circulation and clear complexion. They are not able to practice

A REVISED CANDIDATE.

How A. E. Stevenson is supposed to look since he shaved lightly upon the years have rested lightly upon the Democratic nominee for the Vice-Presidency, for in his portrait, which comes from Chicago, can be believed, A. E. Stevenson is younger now than when he was Assistant Postmaster General and wielded the decapitating ax.

with such neatness and dispatch upon four-class postmasters. Then he wore whiskers on his chin, and the Times artist got their expression beautifully in the picture of him printed in this paper Friday morning. But alas for newspaper illustrators, Mr. Stevenson at some time since he sat for that photograph shaved his chin, making it necessary to present him again in this guise.

The precept, "Physician heal thyself," although that ought to be the test of their claims. There seems to be something in their habits of life and methods of thought which is antagonistic to a sound physical condition, and notice of this ought to be all the caution that sensible people need against trusting themselves to the ministrations of the class.

The recent suicide of Dr. Henry M. Scudder in Chicago, and the development of the autopsy, that he was undoubtedly insane, adds another argument for our theory that prison-asylums should be established for the incarceration of insane criminals. Ten or twelve years ago Dr. Scudder would probably have been acquitted on the ground of insanity; but the reaction in public sentiment in consequence of the abuse of the insanity plea has been so great that it is probable this defense would not have availed him had he gone to trial. And yet the physicians who examined his brain say that he was undoubtedly insane. If the poor wretch had not taken his own life; if he had been tried, convicted and executed for a crime that he was not morally responsible for, it would have been a great cruelty to him and an unmerited disgrace to his family. On the other hand, had he been acquitted on the ground of insanity, as under a strict construction of law he should have been, it would have been a great injustice to the community. Dr. Scudder, with a suicidal mania working in his diseased brain, was not a safe man to be at large. The proposed prison-asylum to which he could have been committed for restraint and proper treatment would have been the proper place for him.

As matters came out, Chicago does not gain much glory for her entertainment of the National Democratic Convention. It was not entirely Chicago's fault, but due, in a large measure, to bad weather and other unfavorable circumstances. There was a chain of missteps from the time the wigwag was unfurled by a tornado until the convention came near breaking up in a panic caused by the fall of some of the electric lighting apparatus. After being rained on at every session and half scared out of their wits by the playful thunder, lightning and wind, it is no wonder the convention concluded it was paying too great a price for accommodating a lobby of ten or twelve thousand people, and instructed the national committee to provide smaller and more secure quarters for subsequent conventions. Chicago's enlarged ideas were for once a failure, because they did not suit the Chicago climate and the particularly villainous spell of weather which happened to prevail.

The latest appeal of the Irish agitators to America for coin is not likely to elicit as generous a response as hitherto. The Irish National League of Des Moines, Iowa, expressed the average sentiment of the sympathizers with the cause in this country by the following pithy declaration: "Resolved, that we condemn the disunion now existing in Ireland and declare we will not contribute a cent to either party till they unite."

The New York Herald, which has always been noted for queer freaks in politics, is now acquitting itself of the queerest of all. It opposes the election of Harrison and supports Reid. How it hopes to secure the election of one without the other, has not been developed.

Gen. Schofield and Sickles have accepted invitations to attend the New Hampshire soldiers' reunion at Weir, where they will meet Gen. Longstreet and other noted ex-Confederates.

William Henry Harrison died in Washington Monday. The burial permit gave his age as 104 years, 7 months and 29 days. He claimed to have had an acquaintance with Washington.

Justice Lamar has so far recovered from his illness of a few weeks ago that he now accepts dinner invitations. As soon as his wife returns from the South they will start for the White Mountains, where they expect to spend the summer.

Dr. Charles Ray Palmer of Bridgeport, Ct., has given to Yale a scholarship of $10,000 as a memorial of his son, Alfred Barnes Palmer, '92, who died recently. The scholarship will pay the beneficiary's tuition and give him $150 in addition.

Gen. Longstreet is now 72 years of age and a man of patriarchal aspect. His hair and whiskers are white as snow, his face ruddy, and his figure tall and erect. He is deaf, as the result of a bullet wound, and one of his arms is disabled. He lives a life of primeval simplicity, going to bed early, and rising at 5 o'clock in the morning to walk in his vineyard.

Col. Ingersoll is getting to be an old man and he shows it. His hair is perfectly white and his round, smooth-shaven face is beginning to fill with wrinkles that alter the appearance that won for him the title of "Baby-faced Bob." His shoulders show a tendency to stoop, and his spectacles are on his face more constantly than they were a few years ago. He is still, however, as quick on his feet as a boy of 16.

POLITICAL POINTS.

The Hill men may not have smiles on the lips, but they carry knives in their belts.

Some fine journalistic hair-splitting is being exhibited on the editorial page of the New York Herald, which opposes Harrison and supports Reid, who was its own candidate for vice.

Stevenson so far failed utterly to discover the bacillus of campaign lying. This particular bacillus is an elusive and de-stressing pest, and already shows signs of shocking peripatetic activity. [Banning Herald.]

Who ducking which the Democratic convention received on the night of the nomination of Cleveland will only be a summer showed compared with the deluge which will sweep away the free-trade party in November.

President Harrison said: "I have felt that I was unable to find a place for every deserving friend." He can congratulate himself. He found places for enough "deserving friends" to secure a renomination against the will of his party.—[Exchange.]

The Democratic platform favors the maintenance of a navy strong enough for all purposes of national defense, and to properly maintain the honor and dignity of the country abroad; but the Democrats in Congress fought hard against the extension of the present navy and tried, practically, to suspend all naval construction.

It is probable that Republican members of the Farmers' Alliance will be much too astute to be caught by Democratic salt thrown on the tail of that organization. Right or wrong, these men are in earnest in their demands, and they have a lively sense of the fact that the Democratic party is not to be trusted to carry out any pledge that it makes. They know it to be a political street-walker whose principles are always exchangeable for votes.—[Humboldt Times.]

The Democrats have nominated a ticket which will give satisfaction to the holders of all shades of opinion on the money question. Cleveland is the unrelenting enemy of silver and thinks the Nation will go to the bottom how now if it uses any other kind of money than gold. Stevenson, the candidate for Vice-President, was elected to Congress as a greenbacker and holds the view that money can only be brought about by allowing the Government presses to turn out an indefinite quantity of paper money. It is a genuine case of "you pays your money and you takes your choice."—[San Francisco Chronicle.]

The electoral vote for President is 444, with 223 necessary for choice. The Republicans are counting on 211 as reasonably certain. If they get these, with the thirty-three from New York, they are all right, of course. But suppose they do not get New York. Still their chances are good. With the six votes of Connecticut and six from Rhode Island, they would have exactly enough. With the fifteen from Indiana, and without New York, they would have 226—more than sufficient. In this calculation it is assumed that the Republicans will lose four votes in Michigan under the Democratic scheme of choosing Presidential electors by districts.

FOREIGN NOTABLES.

Mme. Boelanger, who has returned to Versailles after a long visit to her eldest daughter, has not recaptured the little white villa which was her former home, but has taken up her abode at a hotel.

The King of Spain has grown considerably during the last six months, and is tall and slender. Though of slender build and delicate features, and complexion, he enjoys good health, exhibits much activity in his outdoor amusements and is very eager to ride on a velocipede.

Dr. von Forkebeck, the chief burgomaster of Berlin, who has just died of apoplexy, was among the best known of German politicians. Ever since the turbulent days of 1848 he had taken an active part in public life. From 1874 to 1879 he was the president of the Lower House.

Louis Kossuth is now enjoying excellent health. He is obliged, however, to live regularly and dreads the guilty of no indiscretion. He gets up every morning at 8 o'clock, eats a light breakfast and then works until almost noon. After his midday meal he rests an hour and then walks in the garden about his house until late in the afternoon.

The Archdukes of the reigning house of Austria become of age on the twentieth anniversary of their birth. The attainment of his majority by Archduke Joseph Ferdinand, son of the Grand Duke of Tuscany, a few days ago, was celebrated with considerable pomp at Vienna. The young man is a pupil of the Military Academy in Austria capital.

M. Tricouple, the Greek statesman, spent much of his early life in England, and in later years was charged d'affaires at the Greek legation in London. One of the most remarkable of his personal characteristics was his industry. When in office he worked incessantly from early morning until past midnight, only returning home from his office or from the chamber to snatch a hasty meal and resting himself the midday sleep.

The Gaekwar of Baroda is bringing only one of his wives with him to England, the Marthand Chinnabhi Sahaba, but the other members of his family are coming along to draw to distraction the unlucky omens which it may be to call them by name. WOMAN'S WORLD.

Miss M. T. Herders, for the past six months assistant in the drug store at Darby, Pa., has been appointed chief apothecary at the Howard hospital, Philadelphia.

Mrs. Harriet Shattuck, the author of the "Woman's Manual of Parliamentary Law," and president of a prominent Boston club, has been lecturing with marked success before women's clubs in the West.

Mrs. Reed, lady manager of the World's Fair, Maryland, has established a system of classes in American history in the schools of that State, and offers as a prize a free trip to the fair for the best scholar in that branch.

Miss Mary Abbar is city editor of the Appeal-Avalanche at Memphis. In the lexicon of Miss Abbar there is no such word as fear. She will go wherever a man is willing to risk his life for an item if it is worth running down.

Mme. Marchesi, who has long been famous as a teacher of vocal music, never takes pupils of the sterner sex. She says: "Teach men? Why, all the tenors would be marrying off my sopranos, and I should not have a contralto left after admitting the baritone."

A young woman who lives in Ohio had her ears pierced the other day for the purpose of beautifying herself with earrings. Soon afterward her face began to swell, and the swelling spread to her head and the entire body had become frightfully swollen, and now the physicians say it is impossible for her to live. All of which is worth pondering upon.

Mrs. Bettie Taylor Dandridge of Winchester, Va., and Mrs. Harriet Lane Johnson are the only survivors of the long line of distinguished women who presided over the Executive Mansion previous to the time of Gen. Grant. Mrs. Dandridge is the daughter of President Zachary Taylor, and during his term of office she was the lady of the White House.

Shot Through the Heart.

GOLDEN GATE (Wash.) June 25.—John Green shot and killed William Dunn this afternoon. The men had an altercation over the sale of some cattle, when Dunn slapped Green's face. The latter seized his rifle and shot Dunn through the heart. Green was arrested.

A Slavesman Prince Arrives.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Prince Pim of Siam, who is studying naval matters in the Danish navy, arrived in tonight on the Hecla today, shipping as fourth officer. He will go to Chicago to arrange the Danish naval display at the fair.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

Some Three-Cornered Questions.

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] Will you please answer the following questions:

1. Did Mr. Harrison, previous to his first nomination, declare that he was opposed to a second term, and would not accept a second nomination?
2. Did Mr. Blaine, through his influence, place Mr. Harrison in the Presidential chair?
3. Would it not have been magnanimous on the part of Mr. Harrison to have thrown his influence to Mr. Blaine in the Minneapolis convention?
4. Would Mr. Harrison have been nominated at the Minneapolis convention had the Federal office-holders been conspicuous by their absence?
5. Is Mr. Harrison the choice of the people (the Republicans)?
6. Has Mr. Harrison the requisite magnetism to draw all men unto him?
7. Is Mr. Harrison the cold iceberg he is represented to be?
8. Is Mr. Cleveland the honest choice of the rank and file of the Democrats?
9. If England is anxious for the election of Mr. Cleveland would it not be a safe proposition and for the best interests of the United States of America for every man entitled to the elective franchise to vote for Mr. Harrison?
10. Can Americans afford to let England dictate in matters appearing to the best interests of her institutions and national laws?
11. What is the difference between Benedict Arnold, a traitor, and a man who deliberately walks up to the ballot-box and casts his vote to restore the Democracy to power?
12. Do you think English money will be sent over to San Francisco by the way of Hong Kong to defeat Mr. Harrison in the State of California, as in the case of Mr. Blaine?

Practical Education Required.

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] Three years ago appeared an editorial in THE TIMES headed "Advance in Educational Methods," in which was mentioned the gratifying progress made in response to the growing demand by educators everywhere for some practical system of drawing that would meet the wants of the industrial movement in education. Mrs. Bradford, teacher of drawing at the Los Angeles school, had been engaged by Eastern publishers to prepare such a work, which work has since been published and is in general use East and West. At the close of the editorial the hope was expressed that when the High school building was completed there would be sufficient room in which to inaugurate some system of industrial training by which our schools should keep in step with those of the East, where manual and industrial training is being recognized as a necessity, and the fact emphasized that it is but a one-sided education that trains the intellect alone, and to be educated means that every faculty, brain, hand, eye and ear should be trained to work together.

This was three years ago. The High school was long ago completed, but no room in it has been utilized for industrial education, and instead of a continued advance on the educational lines we are threatened by a serious retrogression unless public sentiment can be aroused to send out yearly to battle for an existence an army of pupils with plenty of facts and figures stored away in their memory, but, except in a small proportion of cases, nothing as a source of subsistence. It is like fitting up an army with handsome uniforms and sending them out to meet the enemy without weapons of defense.

It is strange that the taxpayers of modest means, who cannot hope to send their children to the university, or even through the High school, should go on patiently year after year paying their proportion of taxes by which the universities and high schools are maintained, and never demand that some system of education shall be maintained by the State by which their own children may be trained to useful and self-supporting labor, so that they may not, as now, be crowded out by the skilled labor of the foreigner, and go on swelling the formidable army of the incapable and the tramps.

It is strange that it should be so that we do not think a child worth the expense of an industrial training until he has become a criminal. They go on making appropriations for more prisons and schools for juvenile offenders rather than for the sort of education likely to make them less necessary.

It is strange that the Government thinks it necessary to give to the Indians privileges of industrial training denied to the child of the poor citizen, and that the State of California can deem it expedient to turn out from its orphan asylums at the tender age of fourteen homeless children, untaught in any trade or industry that will give them food.

The public does not want less spent on our schools but more, and less on convicting vagrants, criminal prosecutions, jury and witness fees (jurors are never paid) and witnesses that never testify, and homes to restrain incorrigibles. We want better education, more practical education, let it cost what it may, and we cannot afford to give up anything that tends to that end.

Right here let us ask why we hear so much said of the fine school system of California, when we are so far behind the East in practical education; and also why we hear so much of the need of economy in our schools when the cost per capita of educating our children is very much less than in many Eastern cities, only a little more than half the cost of the schools of Chicago, less than half the cost of the Minneapolis schools.

Can we not afford as much for our schools as other cities?

If there must be economy let it begin by leaving out some of the branches studied by comparatively few pupils, and that can be acquired by those desiring them at the college or university, but let us by all means keep those that are of the greatest practical benefit to rich or poor, and let our Board of Education distinguish itself by adding more of the practical methods of education to our schools.

Noted Americans Who Were Expelled from Russia Arrive in Berlin—The Emperor Treats Them With Marked Courtesy.

By Telegram to The Times.

BERLIN, June 25.—[Copyright, 1892, by the New York Associated Press.] Interviews between Sig. Brin, Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs, and the Emperor resulted in a promise of German support for Italian finances on the condition that the Italian army and navy shall be sustained at their present strength. King Humbert proposed a large reduction in the army, pleading the absolute financial necessity for such reduction. The Emperor succeeded in persuading him against making the reduction mainly through pledging the assistance of the leading banks of Germany in operations for the purchase of the existing Italian bonds and also, if required, the assistance of a syndicate to take the new Italian loan. In an interview that Sig. Brin accorded to a number of journalists prior to his starting on his return to Rome, yesterday, he said he could foresee nothing likely for some time to disturb the pacific relations of the European powers. When asked whether it was true that the Czar had invited Emperor Francis Joseph to a conference at Silesiawice or Spala, Sig. Brin cautiously admitted that he had heard something concerning the subject, adding that the arrangements were still a matter of reserve.

THE ITALIAN ROYALTIES.

The King and Queen of Italy arrived at Frankfurt today. The Hussars, of which regiment King Humbert is honorary colonel, mustered at the station to receive him. King Humbert placed himself at the head of the regiment and marched to the barracks, where he lunched with the officers. Queen Margherita proceeded to Hamburg for the purpose of congratulating Empress Frederick on the betrothal of her daughter, Princess Margaret, to Prince Frederick Charles, eldest son of the Landgrave of Hesse.

BISMARCK'S TRIUMPH.

Bismarck's triumphal progress reached its climax tonight at a reception given in his honor at the Rathhaus at Munich. All the guests brimmed over with enthusiasm. Prince Bismarck expressed thanks for the reception given him. He hoped peace would continue to the empire by the existing alliances. Some allusions in the speech plainly indicated Prince Bismarck's desire to convey the impression that the policy of Emperor William and Chancellor von Caprivi was a failure and menaced the future of Bavaria, as it did that of other parts of the empire. The projected economic entente between Germany and Russia has collapsed under the continued opposition at St. Petersburg of the Minister of Finance and Minister of War.

TOWN'S TALK.

Alarming advices come from St. Petersburg, showing that the city is preparing for an outbreak of cholera. The medical department has issued instructions, giving special information as to the course to follow in case of an invasion of Asiatic cholera. Emperor William is at Stettin, where he is launching the warship Arviso. He will return to Kiel Monday, and then start on a month's voyage to Norway. Poultney Bigelow and Frederick Remington, the artists, who were expelled from Russia a short time ago, have arrived here. Bigelow complains of a lack of interest shown in the case by the American charge d'affaires at St. Petersburg. The affair has made him still more a persona grata with Emperor William. He was invited both to the state dinner and concert given in honor of King Humbert.

A DEADLY BOILER.

Its Explosion Causes the Death of Two Persons and Injuries to Others.

NEW ORLEANS, June 25.—[By the Associated Press.] A boiler in the Consumers' Ice Company's works exploded this afternoon, wrecking the building and the adjoining buildings. Two colored men were passing the building. One was instantly killed and the other fatally injured. A number of persons in the building were injured as follows: Albert Coleman, fatally injured; Maurice Smith, Jacob Frickey, critically; Nick Smith and William Scully will die; Mrs. John Hilbert and child, the former in a critical condition; Mrs. Comeau, badly scalded, in a critical condition; Richard Meredith and James Brown.

Novel Way to Beat Prohibition.

STOUT FALLS (N. D.), June 25.—A startling proposition was made to the City Council last night by United States Commissioner Lyon. He expressed the opinion that the prohibitory law would not prevent the city from engaging in the saloon business. He offered to furnish the necessary money to start saloons in various parts of the city. He was to be a partner, but the management was to be under the city control. He claims it would net the city $25,000 a year. The Mayor will appoint a committee to investigate and the experiment will probably be made.

Retaliating on Boycotters.

NEW YORK, June 25.—At the close of today's work members of the Iron League in retaliation for the boycott by the Housemiths' Union, discharged all smiths, numbering nearly 200. About 500 other employees, dependent on the Housemiths will be made idle. Further complications are likely to result, and probably lead to the throwing of several hundred men out of work.

Singular Method of Suicide.

JOPLIN (Mo.), June 25.—Elijah Boyd, a director of the First National Bank and a rich mine owner, committed suicide this morning in a novel and shocking manner. He placed a giant cartridge against his head and lighted the fuse. When it exploded the top of his head and his left hand were blown off. He is supposed to have been temporarily insane.

CHICAGO, June 25.—United States District Attorney Michrist said today that he had little hope of being able to convict the whiskey trust officials under the indictment in Boston. In his opinion the anti-trust law does not cover the method of operations pursued by the trust.

FIFTY-SECOND CONGRESS FIRST SESSION.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—[By the Associated Press.] House.—The work of the House is at a standstill owing to the lack of a quorum and apprehension is felt that the situation next week will be no better. Telegrams have been sent to the absentees urging them to return.

When the House met this morning no quorum was present and the body adjourned after a session of a minute and half, the shortest session on record.

Called on the President.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Several members of the Republican National Committee, which meets here Monday, called on the President today. He said he was devoting attention to the selection of a chairman of the committee. Gen. Clarkson, chairman of the Republican National Committee, had a long conference with the President today regarding the political situation and it is said the President requested him to take charge of his interests in the coming campaign. In case he decides to do so, Mr. Clarkson will undoubtedly be elected chairman at the meeting of the committee on Monday.

The Question of Canadian Tolls.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The statement from Ottawa, Canada, intimating that the communication from the Canadian commissioners on the subject of canal tolls had been received by President Harrison the same day he sent his message to the Senate is denied at the State Department. The communication was received today. Its character cannot be learned.

Proposed Constitutional Amendments.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The House Committee on the Election of President and Vice-President will bring up in the House as early as possible two joint resolutions proposing amendments to the Constitution, providing for the election of United States Senators by the people and changing the date of inauguration to April 30.

Nevada Silver Men.

RENO (Nev.), June 25.—The convention of the Silver League met this morning at 10:15 in the opera-house. Chairman Powning made an eloquent speech relative to Hon. G. W. Cassady, a prominent member of the convention, who died yesterday afternoon. The chairman appointed a committee of five to draft resolutions of respect, after which the convention proceeded to the regular order of business of electing the balance of the State Central Committee. Several resolutions were adopted sending delegates to Omaha and Montana conventions. Nixon, editor of the Silver State, offered a resolution that the Nevada silver party cooperate with the American Bimetallist League of Washington. This was adopted, and after several more resolutions of minor importance had been adopted the convention adjourned to meet at the polls in November.

Prominent Young Stockton Man Dead.

STOCKTON, June 25.—Thomas J. Weber, youngest son of Capt. C. M. Weber, founder of the city of Stockton, died this morning after a few weeks' illness. He was taken ill with nervous prostration and a week ago today acute mania developed which resulted in his death. For the past week the attending physicians have said he could not recover, and it was necessary to keep him restrained. He was 33 years old and a native of this city. He was married about three months ago and leaves a young wife, also a mother, sister and brother, C. M. Weber of San José. Deceased was a nephew of the wealthy Murphys of San José.

A Tardy Denial of Guilt.

OSKOSH CITY (Or.), June 25.—Tim Sullivan, who was arrested at Hillsboro yesterday and who, it was stated, confessed to the outrage and murder of Mamie Walsh near Milwaukee last Wednesday, was brought here this afternoon by officers. He denies all knowledge of the crime and of having made a confession at Hillsboro. On their return to this city today the officers inquired at different places where the prisoner claimed to have been on Wednesday, and parties corroborated his statement.

Depew Continues Retiree.

NEW YORK, June 25.—It is reported that Mr. Depew has written a letter to President Harrison declining the appointment to the vacancy in the Cabinet. When Mr. Depew was asked if the report was true, he replied: "You must excuse me from talking about the vacancy in the Cabinet. I am willing to discuss almost any other subject, but I decline to say anything either one way or the other about the position of Secretary of State."

Suing for Their Patrimony.

CHICAGO, June 25.—Florence and Douglas Cushman of California filed a bill in the United States District Court today against Noah C. Perkins and five or six other defendants for recovery of their patrimony in the shape of land near Ottawa, Ill., valued at $50,000, which they claim to have been swindled out of by a fraudulent transaction.

A TERRIBLE BLUNDER.

Cause of the Railway Disaster at Harrisburg.

The Number of Dead Now Known to Be Eleven—Their Names.

Eighteen of the Injured in the Hospital—Some Cannot Live.

A Telegraph Operator Admits That His Blunder Caused the Calamity—Story That the Trainmen Were Also to Blame.

By Telegram to The Times.

HARRISBURG (Pa.), June 25.—[By the Associated Press.] The accident to the Western express on the Pennsylvania road in this city early this morning was fully as bad as the first dispatches indicated. Eleven persons were killed and a large number injured, though all except about a dozen were only slightly hurt and most of them proceeded on their journey. The story of the accident is brief. The first section stopped near Union station and was just starting when the second section, a heavy train made up of Pullman sleepers, express and baggage car, plunged into the private car of Westinghouse, the well-known inventor, drove it forward, crushing three day coaches ahead of it into kindling wood. The strength of the Westinghouse car saved it and its occupants.

The accident was due to a wrong signal or a misunderstanding of a signal. Plenty of assistance at once came to rescue the injured and remove the dead from the wreck. The former were taken to the hospital, where the physicians and surgeons labored during the night to allay the suffering.

The following is the list of the dead: R. S. Raymond, Columbus, O., horse dealer; E. M. Whitelock, Cleveland, O., chief clerk of the railroad company; Daniel Mason, Hagerstown, Md., telegrapher of the Pennsylvania Railroad; Prof. G. L. Smith, Baltimore; Rev. De Costa Pomero, Philadelphia; Mr. Uria Heebner, Norristown, Pa., and son Winfield, aged 7; Charles Lee, Allegheny City, telegrapher; Richard Adams, Harrisburg, furniture dealer; two unidentified are supposed to be a telegrapher named Clark of Altoona and the other a young woman supposed to have boarded the train at Lancaster.

Eighteen injured are in the hospital, all of whom except two or three will recover.

The body of an unknown girl has been identified as Miss Lizzie Blair of Philadelphia. She was accompanying Mrs. Mary J. Granger to Seattle, Wash. Mrs. Granger is in the hospital here. She was on her way from Philadelphia to Seattle with her daughter, Mamie, aged 8, and Lizzie Blair, who her husband, employed on the steamship Seattle, plying on Puget Sound. Her injuries are about the head, chest and abdomen. Several ribs are probably fractured. Mamie Granger's injuries may prove serious, but the physicians express hopes of saving her life.

The operator at the Steelton tower is said to be responsible for the collision, it being alleged that he permitted the second section to enter the block before the first had cleared it. Another story, however, is that the rules of the company require engineers to have control of their trains when approaching a terminal point and that the second section was not under such control when the accident occurred.

Prof. G. L. Smith of Baltimore died this afternoon, striking the eleventh death. Mrs. Granger of Philadelphia is also in a dangerous condition.

LATER.—The injured at the hospital are all doing well, and it is believed all will recover with the exception of Frederick Coleberg. The number of passengers still at the hospital is about eighteen. All the dead have been identified as in the list above, with the exception that Clark of Altoona, Pa., should have been John Black of the same city. H. S. Hayes, the operator at the Steelton tower, practically admitted before the coroner's inquest this afternoon that he is responsible for the wreck. The jury will view the scene of the wreck and conclude the hearing Monday.

A Hotel Tumbles Into the Ocean.

SAN DIEGO, June 25.—For six weeks a force of men has been engaged in moving a large frame hotel from Punta Bauda to Ensenada, Lower California, by water. At length the building was successfully loaded on a huge lighter to towed to its destination. Last night the house collapsed and fell into the ocean. It was valued at $14,000, and is a total loss. The lighter has drifted out to sea.

THE DEMOCRATS.

The Untrifled Out in Force Last Evening.

The Nomination of Cleveland and Stevenson Duly Ratified.

A Torchlight Procession With the Usual Accompaniments.

Speech-making at Hazard's Pavilion—Democratic Doctrine Expounded by Local Orators With More or Less Eloquence.

The ratification of the choice of the Democratic National Convention at Chicago in the early hours of last Thursday took place in this city last night, and from general appearances it is very evident that the Democrats of Los Angeles and vicinity are well pleased with the selection of Cleveland and Stevenson for the standard-bearers, if one can judge from the number of people on the streets, the size of the audience and the amount of enthusiasm that was thrown out at every jump of the immense procession.

There was one drawback to the celebration and that was the length of time it took the parade to get under headway. The procession was advertised to move at 8 o'clock promptly, but it did not get under headway until an hour later.

That it was a Democratic procession in every sense of the word no one who gazed on it could doubt for a moment. It was filled up with shotguns, firecrackers and cowboy yells. There were fully 2500 in line, and the grand marshal deserves much credit for the manner in which he got his people under way when the aids reported to him that they were ready to move. N. A. Covarrubias was grand marshal, with the following aids: F. E. Gibbon, Dr. J. J. Choate, J. W. Griffin, Tom Beatty, E. H. O'Melveny, J. E. Frick, J. H. Tate, John Webster, Frank C. Pinlayson, J. Schumacher, R. H. Lacy, U. Del Valle, N. M. Quirolo, John Chanslor, W. R. Burke, F. G. Schumacher, D. W. Mitchell, Thomas Casey.

The procession formed on Main street, between Fifth and Sixth, resting on Sixth in the following order:

Grand Marshal, N. A. Covarrubias, Chief of Staff, I. H. Polk.
AIDS:
Douglas's Band.
FIRST DIVISION:
Marshal E. Germain and aids.
Tammany.
East Side Clubs.
President, orators and invited guests.
Santa Monica.
Norwalk.
Downside.
and Newhall citizens.
SECOND DIVISION:
Marshal Guy Barham and aids.
Jackson and Gun Clubs.
Redondo, Wilmington, San Pedro, Duarte, Tropic and Azusa citizens.
THIRD DIVISION:
Marshal Jack Adloff and aids.
Band.
German-American.
French-American.
Spanish-American.
Monrovia.
and Pasadena citizens.
FOURTH DIVISION:
Marshal Rafael Dominguez and aids.
Band.
Horseback Brigade.
Tin-horn Brigade.

The procession marched up Main street to the Plaza and counter-marched on Main to junction of Main and Spring and down Spring to Fifth street, and from that point to Hazard's Pavilion. There were fully 2500 in line, and they yelled like an army of Apache Indians at every jump.

The sidewalks and streets were crowded with large crowds of people, and every window and building on the line of march was crowded with men, women and children who were anxious to see what kind of a showing the Democrats would make. They were evidently pleased with the result, if one could judge from the manner in which the 15,000 or 20,000 people on the streets yelled.

THE EXERCISES.

The Speech-making at Hazard's Pavilion at 9:30 O'clock.

The Jack-o'-Club reached Hazard's Pavilion at 9:30 o'clock, and advanced to the stage amid shouts of the immense audience that had gathered in the Pavilion long before the head of the procession reached Fifth street. Douglas's band took its position in the rear of the stage almost immediately after and rendered the "Red, White and Blue" in most excellent style.

By this time every seat in the Pavilion was occupied and yell after yell rent the air.

The grand marshal called the audience to order at 9:45 o'clock and stated that he was pleased to face such a large audience who were present to ratify the nomination of Grover Cleveland. For five minutes the applause was so deafening that nothing but the sounds of fish horns and yells could be heard. He then introduced Gen. John R. Mathews as president of the evening.

Gen. Mathews made a few remarks on taking the platform, and was applauded every time the name of Cleveland was mentioned.

Secretary T. E. Gibbon then read a list of the following vice-presidents, who took their seats on the stage:

M. Morris, R. C. Guirado, J. F. Humphreys, A. P. Mackay, N. Mercandante, J. B. Threlkeld, D. J. Kutz, M. T. Collins, Kaspare Cohn, William Lacy, Joe Mesmer, C. E. Thom, W. H. Workman, J. Kurtz, N. Lundefeld, Conrad Jacoby, J. Shirley Ward, Dr. J. Crawford, A. Aguirre, H. K. E. O'Melveny, Daniel Innes, P. M. Lickell, D. McGarry, Frank Sabich, C. E. Bosbyshell, T. P. Mott, J. G. Estudillo, A. D. Childress, Dr. J. Nadeau, Judge T. D. Winder, Fielding Bacon, Dr. Max Wassman, Edgar Moore, W. J. Broderick, N. C. Bledsoe, Hon. Thomas E. Rowan, P. W. Harkness, George H. Smith, Charles Hayden, George J. Denie, J. B. Lankershim, Refugio Blandier, John Kennedy, W. B. Scarborough, M. E. C. Munday, J. T. Sheppard, A. Orilla, E. Dunigan, Richard Malony, Judge Gordon, Joseph Maier, H. W. Stoll, James Hawley, Henry King, William S. Waters, Samuel Prager, C. F. A. East, J. Martin Brown, Judge C. E. Pitman, B. F. Coulter, T. E. Brown, George E. Dixon, J. D. Bicknell, Charles Forman, J. G. Downey, Dr. Newton, E. M. Guthrie, Eugene Germain, Charles Prager, L. Polaski, W. R. Burke, H. Bartington, George Van Valkenburgh, J. R. Mathews, J. A. Castuccio, J. T. Bearden, J. Redman, J. A. Aguirre, Charles E. Lantz, A. W. Hutton, W. A. Ryan, S. L. Skinner, H. W. Hellman, James J. Ayers, John T. Jones, J. A. Graves, S. C. Foy, M. J. Nolan, W. R. Rowland, Puente, James H. Dodson, San Pedro, H. C. Bedlie, Judge Morgan, M. K. Baren, Santa Monica, George J. Alsworth, R. H. Thompson, Redondo, Abbott Kinney, Alhambra, A. M. Bragg, Lago, A. E. Cronenwett, Monrovia, W. W. Orr, Norwalk, Judge R. S. Eaton, South Pasadena, H. D. Westerman, Pomona, George Hinds, Wilmington, J. C. Driffield, Pomona, J. de Barth Shorb, San Gabriel, W. U. Masters, Pasadena, J. H. Brewer, Vernon, C. H. Eberle, Downey, I. Z. Madden, Covina.

The first speaker of the evening was Col. J. J. Ayers, who made a five minutes' address and was frequently applauded. B. J. Franklin followed and made a good speech from a Democratic standpoint.

W. J. Hunsaker, late of San Diego, was called upon by the chair and made a lively speech.

John W. Mitchell of Cahuenga was next introduced and he was followed by M. E. C. Munday who wound up the programme.

The speech making was not a brilliant success for the reason that the great local talkers of the party were not present, and at least two-thirds of the audience took their departure before the new orators got under headway. Had the old stand-bys been in the hall the audience might have remained to the last, but they did not know what the new men could do and the last speaker had to talk to empty benches.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

A Chance for Some Farmer to See the Great Show Cheap.

The following proposition has been received from A. Phillips by the Southern California World's Fair Association, wherein he offers to furnish a round trip ticket to the World's Columbian Exposition to Chicago in 1893, to any one person living in either of the six southern counties who will produce for competition, the best samples in quantities as follows: Twenty stalks of corn with ears attached (tallest); twenty ears of corn of variety (yellow); twenty ears of corn of one variety (white); twenty stock beets, twenty sugar beets, twenty turnips, twenty onions (any variety), five squash (largest); thirty pounds Irish potatoes, twenty pounds sweet potatoes; the same to be delivered to the Chamber of Commerce in Los Angeles not later than the 1st day of November, 1892. Duplicate specimens of the vegetables are to be furnished the 1st of August, 1893. All samples to become the property of the Southern California World's Fair Association. The judges to determine the awards to be given to the association outside of its membership. Such samples as are accepted will be exhibited at the World's Fair as Southern California products.

The Los Angeles County World's Fair Committee makes the following offer of premiums to residents of the county. For best three sheaves of wheat, each eight inches in diameter, and as tall as can be obtained, and best 100 pounds of wheat, first premium, $10; second premium, $5.

For best three sheaves of barley, each eight inches in diameter, and as tall as can be obtained, and best 100 pounds of barley, first premium, $10; second premium, $5.

Grain should be cut as close to the ground as possible and be cured; kept in a dark place to prevent bleaching. All samples entered for competition shall become the property of the World's Fair Association and must be delivered at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce on or before September 1, 1892. A committee of three competent judges, not members of the organization, will be appointed by the World's Fair Committee. A large amount of grain, both in the sheaf and in the measure, will be required for display at Chicago, and it is earnestly hoped that all persons having good grain will enter it for competition.

For further particulars address the association at the Chamber of Commerce.

JULY WEATHER.

Interesting Statistics Published by the Weather Bureau.

The Chief of the Weather Bureau has directed the publication of the following data, compiled from the record of observations for the month of July, taken at the Los Angeles station during a period of fifteen years. It is believed that the facts thus set forth will prove of interest to the public, as well as the special student, showing as they do the average and extreme conditions of more important meteorological elements and the range within which such variations may be expected to keep during any corresponding month.

Temperature—Mean or normal temperature, 72°. The warmest July, was that of 1891, with an average of 74°; the coldest July, was that of 1880, with an average of 64°; the highest temperature during any July was 109° on the 25th, 1891; the lowest temperature during any July was 49° on the 12th, 1888.

Precipitation (rain)—Average for the month, .93 inches; average number of days with .01 of an inch or more, 9; the greatest monthly precipitation was .27 inches in 1886; the least monthly precipitation was .00 inches in 1877, 1878, 1879, 1881, 1882, 1889; the greatest amount of precipitation recorded in any 24 consecutive hours was .24 inches on July 14, 1886.

Clouds and weather—Average number of cloudless days, 14; average number of partly cloudy days, 16; average number of cloudy days, 1.

Wind—The prevailing winds have been from the west, the highest velocity of wind during any July was 23 miles on July 7, 1880, and July 14, 1886.

Col. Bob on Poets.

"When you read Shakespeare and don't find something new your mind is failing," says Col. Robert G. Ingersoll. According to this dictum what a massive mind Dr. Ingersoll must have. Pope Bob delivered himself of some interesting opinions about literature during a chat with a Kansas City reporter the other day. "The greatest poem ever written on this continent," said he, "is Whitman's poem on the death of Lincoln, entitled 'When Lilacs Last in the Dooryard Bloomed.' The greatest novel in our language, and it may be the greatest in any language, is Dickens' 'Tale of Two Cities.' Hawthorne was a great writer, but his style is a little monotonous. Edgar Fawcett is a great poet; his 'Maiden Flower' is as beautiful as anything Tennyson has ever written."

And so the genial Colonel chattered on, dropping a pearl of thought at every period and a wise saw at every semicolon; but one of his sayings is well worth remembering—that "the creations of Dickens' brain have become the citizen's soul of the world."

DR. WOHO,

The Eminent Chinese Physician.

No Opium or Poisonous Drugs are used in my Practice.

Herbs and Medicines of Absolute Purity obtainable on hand and for Sale.

Dr. Woh's life work has been from early youth one of persistent and untiring observation, study and investigation, as fully as lay in his power to perfect himself in the branches of the art of healing human sickness and disease.

Born in China, of industrial parents, of a family whose ancestors have been for generations deservedly renowned as leading physicians, Dr. Woh naturally followed in the footsteps of his fathers. In China he has practiced his profession for several years, being at one time a physician in the Imperial Hospital, and in America for a long time. His great number of patients, his wonderful and many cures, and the great list of letters from grateful and thankful patrons now prove him to be a remarkable and successful healer of sickness and all diseases.

For a long time I have been suffering with bladder and kidney troubles. No doctoring or medicines seemed to do me good. I consulted the best physicians and surgeons in Los Angeles city. They gave me morphine and drugs, but no relief could I obtain. After suffering great pain and having my passage almost entirely closed I, four or five days ago, began using Dr. Woh's medicines. Today I am perfectly well. I do consider Dr. Woh the most successful physician in Southern California. C. A. STEELE, 116 and 318 S. Main st., Los Angeles, Cal. October 12, 1892.

I have tried many doctors for heart disease, but have derived no benefit until Dr. Woh, the Chinese physician, of Los Angeles city, prescribed for me. Two months ago I began his treatment, and can now certify that he has done me great good. I recommend Dr. Woh to my friends as an able doctor. P. E. KING, Justice of the Peace, Burbank, Cal.

Dr. Woh has hundreds of similar testimonials, but space alone prevents further publication of them here.

Dr. Woh is the oldest and best-known Chinese Physician in Southern California. His many cures have been remarkable, involving Female Troubles, Tumors and every form of disease.

All communications will be regarded as strictly confidential.

Free consultation and all ailments are cordially invited to call on Dr. Woh at his office.

The Democrats Defeat the Republicans at Baseball.

Notes and Comment on Timely and Interesting Topics.

Some of the Places Where You May Attend Church.

Various Items of Local Interest—One Way to Celebrate the Fourth—People on the Go—Batch of Brevities.

Nine followers of G. Cleveland yesterday afternoon did up an equal number of young men, who are enlisted under the banner of B. Harrison, on the local baseball arena to the tune of 17 to 1. The Athletic Park was the scene of action, which set in lively about 2:30 o'clock and continued without intermission for two solid hours. There was a fair crowd of spectators present, and what they lacked in numbers they made up in enthusiasm.

The adherents of the Stuffed Prophet got in their work in the first inning, which closed with no less than eleven runs to their credit. If this unfortunate event had not happened Mr. Harrison's friends would have won. While the entire game was not played on a strictly national league basis, there were a few features that would at least do credit to Col. Robinson's Oakland aggregation. Jack Spencer proved himself a second Trway in the batting line, the game closing with a three-base hit and a home run to his credit. In striking opposition to this was "Shorty" Miller's vain attempt to swing the ball. Four times did Mr. Miller present himself as a sacrifice at the shrine of Pitcher Bridges and four times did he succumb. He never touched the ball. Henry Newby, who captained the Republican forces, closed the fifth inning with a circus catch out in left field that was one of the features of the game. Henry made a wonderful run and gathered in the ball with one hand, amid the plaudits of the assembled multitude, regardless of politics. Another remarkable play occurred in the last inning. The Republican men were at bat. Mr. Knight had succeeded in getting so far around the circuit as second base, when Mr. Burke knocked a high fly ball out into the left grading ground. Mr. Knight thought the seider would catch it and so he didn't run; Mr. Burke didn't care whether the seider caught it or not and he ran accordingly. The seider did catch it, but before this had happened Mr. Burke had actually reached second base and passed Mr. Knight in a wild race for the third bag. Both men were declared out and sorrow reigned supreme in the Republican camp.

*Burke out in ninth inning for running by Knight while both are running bases. Knight also out for reasons unknown to the scorer.

It is a sad fact to record that Pasadena sometimes forget themselves. At the Operahouse Friday night, for instance, some things were done that might better have been left undone. After the house was completely filled, those who acted, insisted upon entering. The ushers protested but it was of no avail. Contrary to the laws of the State the aisles were filled with people who could not be caught without the exercise of main force. Not only this but the catches on the gallery doors were broken by a party of two-anxious intruders, some of whom at least, can not be classed among the hoodlum element. The ribbons in the dress circle, which it was hoped would prove sufficient to reserve some of the seats for those participating in the exercises, were also rudely torn down and the reserved seats boldly usurped, all of which was neither gentlemanly nor ladylike. If the names of those who acted thus were published, it would surprise everybody who was not present to witness the performance.

It is being well urged that Pasadena begin to move in the matter of preparing an exhibit for the World's Fair. Certainly, a similar opportunity for advertising the town's resources and attractions, and resources has never before been offered itself, and if it is not taken advantage of it will be because the citizens have less business sagacity than they are believed to possess.

A visitor remarked yesterday that the traveler who merely passes through Pasadena on the cars, or who remains for a few hours in the business portion of the place, has not the slightest conception of the town's attractions. This is so. Both roads, fortunately or unfortunately, enter Pasadena, through its most uninviting territory, which can hardly make a favorable impression upon the casual observer. No one should air his opinion of the place until they have at least taken a drive about it and viewed a few of its attractions.

Pasadena possesses all the luxuries and advantages of a city of 100,000 inhabitants, to say nothing of the finest climate in the world and unrivaled natural surroundings. These are things for the home-seeker to ponder over.

MR. POTTER HAS HIS SAY.

What is the matter with fair Pasadena that she is not alive to the situation and sheoping up the best thing she has to boast of?

Said a Chicago man recently, "The sight of that Villa street reservoir will do more to recommend your city than all your boom blow and bluster can accomplish in ten years, and I should think your town would make the most of the opportunity.

"In fact of wasting power and printer's ink on a list of names of local transposed and republished in your newspapers nearly every day in the year, drop the everlasting roll call and let your fathers announce a Water Tournament for the glorious Fourth in honor of California's King and the Lake Vineyard enterprise and crown the water king as he deserves."

"M. C. POTTER."

Some time next month the trustees will decide who shall succeed Mr. Monroe as superintendent of the public schools.

The Salvation Army is preparing to hold a rousing meeting at the Methodist Episcopal Church on the evening of July 1.

Mr. Libby has made many noticeable improvements on his house and grounds recently purchased on Orange Grove avenue.

The high school graduates were the recipients of many handsome floral tributes at the close of the exercises Friday night.

In the absence of Rev. Dr. Conger, Prof. John Dickinson will fill the pulpit of the Universalist Church this morning and evening.

Bishop Fowler will preach at the usual hours today at the Methodist Tabernacle.

The bishop's ability as an orator is unquestionable.

A party of prominent citizens went up to Devil's Gate yesterday afternoon to see how the work of developing the water supply is getting on.

In the light of the extensive preparations that are being made for the Fourth of July celebration in Los Angeles, there will probably be no local celebration on this auspicious occasion.

Apparently there are as many people in Pasadena today as during the winter season. This is probably not so, but the boarding-house proprietors seem to think so, and they ought to know.

The alumni of the Pasadena High school spent a most enjoyable time yesterday evening at the residence of Dr. Thomas on Orange Grove avenue. The reception was the first of its kind ever held here.

Services of special interest will be held today at the Christian Church. The pastor will preach at both services. His subject in the morning will be "Our First and Greatest Gift," and in the evening "Stepping Over the Line."

Rev. W. B. Carr, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Latrobe, Pa., is on a visit here with his wife, the guest of his nephew, Mr. Carr is a warm friend of the Young Men's Christian Association, and will deliver an address to them this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Storey's Hall. There will be a large attendance to hear him.

VENTURA COUNTY.

The Democratic Ratification—Some Noise but Little Enthusiasm.

Upon receipt of the news here Thursday morning that Cleveland had been nominated, the local Democracy made arrangements to ratify at once. Accordingly the band was engaged for Thursday evening and a goodly number of small boys told to be on hand to trade their yell for the privileges of exploding fire-crackers. Between the band and the other noise a good sized crowd assembled at Armory Hall and at 8 o'clock T. O. Toland called the meeting to order and A. G. Orena acted as secretary. Judge Lovejoy of Tulare was the first speaker and he was followed by W. E. Shepherd. The latter thought the country was the verge of a crisis which would surely follow if Cleveland was not elected. The genuine enthusiasm was lacking and were it not for the boys and those of the more protracted character, the applause and cheers would not have been at all loud.

Ella Field was rearrested Thursday morning on the charge of robbery, the same case in which she was discharged the day before. A woman named Sadie Brown squealed and Ella is now under $1000 bonds.

In the divorce proceeding of Murphy vs. Murphy in the Superior Court Friday morning, Murphy, who was suing for a separation, went on the stand and said that she had left defendant. As she set up in her complaint that Murphy had failed to support her, the Court concluded to dismiss the case and grant no divorce. They are yet man and wife.

The first two carloads of rails for the Ojai and Ventura Railway arrived Thursday morning, and this morning's arrivals began running lines and setting stakes. The work of laying rails will be commenced on Monday. The company has purchased four miles of rails thus far.

Contracts for the season's crop of lima beans have been opened at $2.50 per 100 pounds.

The starch factory at Hueneume will be enlarged soon and given a capacity of a ton a day.

New barley is being hauled to the Hueneume warehouse.

CLAREMONT.

The commencement exercises at Pomona College began on Sunday last, opening with the annual sermon to the Christian Associations, delivered by Rev. O. S. Norton. Monday was occupied in the written examinations and the reception and musical at 8:30 in the evening, when an attractive programme was rendered.

The graduates in the piano department this year are Stella May Ford and Myrtle Truth Webster. Scholarships on piano, Ed. C. Harwood, Ontario; voice, Arabella P. Lewis, Los Angeles.

Another Sensation Reported at Garden Grove.

The Old Story of a Trusting Husband and a Faithless Wife.

The Young Lothario in the Case of a Prominent Church Member.

The Guilty Couple Detected by the Injured Husband and His Friends—A Tragedy Narrowly Averted—Notes and Personalities.

SANTA ANA.

Who would have thought the quiet little town of Garden Grove capable of furnishing two first-class sensations in one week's time? The residents of that neck of the woods have always been considered plow, law-abiding and virtuous, but the disclosures of the past week have developed the fact that wolves are abroad in sheep's clothing. A report reached this city several days ago that a certain young married couple leaving near Garden Grove, the names not being given at this writing for sufficient reasons, have agreed to disagree, from force of circumstances resulting from some startling discoveries made by the husband. It seems that some friend whispered to the unsuspecting husband that his beautiful young wife and a certain young man of the neighborhood, and of the church of the vicinity, needed a little watching and therefore arrangements were made for the friend to prove to the husband the truthfulness of his intuition.

The husband announced to his wife his intention of being absent over night on business matters, and in company with his wife and several other trustworthy confidants went into hiding near the house a few hours later came near being the scene of a double murder and perhaps a suicide.

As the afternoon sun sank into the horizon the young man slipped from his pocket a revolver and snatched a pistol from his pocket and of the church in the vicinity, found his way to the home of the beautiful young wife, and forthwith the twin proceeded to enjoy themselves in the neighborhood, the seclusion, as they supposed, of their own society. In this, however, they were mistaken, for the husband and his several trusted friends were watching the house as soon as he entered, and through apertures in the windows were eye-witnesses to the little social gathering.

The young husband was dumbfounded when first the truth of his wife's unfaithfulness rushed upon him, but soon recovering, he snatched a pistol from his pocket and burst in upon the pair with the avowed purpose of filling their worthless bodies with lead. In this rash act he was prevented by the prompt intervention of his trusted friends, but the young villain who was seeking to destroy the domestic happiness of a once peaceful home, lost no time in making himself conspicuous by his absence.

A terrific storm between husband and wife followed, which resulted in both forgoing their once happy home for more congenial quarters.

The young man of the neighborhood is reported to have left for parts unknown, the young wife is crying her eyes out to think that she was such a fool as to betray the confidence of her husband; the husband is still spitting red coals of fire, and the friends of both are trying to bring about a reconciliation.

SANTA ANA BREVITIES.

Mrs. G. Adams of Los Angeles is visiting friends in this city.

Miss Emma Whitte arrived home Friday evening from a visit to Los Angeles.

Miss Alice Mosgrove of San Francisco is visiting friends in Santa Ana.

J. S. Pitman and wife left yesterday for Ontario for a few days to visit friends.

A. B. Rose of Los Angeles was in Santa Ana yesterday in consultation with several local horsemen.

A petition for probate of will was filed yesterday in the estate of William Blasdale, deceased, of Orange.

W. H. Smith, wife of Wayne, Neb., arrived in Santa Ana yesterday via Mr. Smith's parents, S. W. Smith and wife.

N. L. Galbraith, a mechanic working on East Front street, yesterday had his foot badly cut by stepping on a broken beer bottle.

The town of Tustin has the honor of organizing the first People's Party Club in Orange county, although Garden Grove follows a close second.

A young man driving Lehman & Christman's delivery wagon was bitten yesterday by a snake when he was on his way to a party while walking on Main street.

Seven hundred seats have been reserved for the Modjeska entertainment next Saturday opening, and 300 or more will be left for general admission.

A mass meeting was held at Garden Grove last evening for the purpose of organizing a local People's Party Club. The meeting was addressed by leading speakers of the reform movement.

The Congregational school Friday evening was well attended. A pleasing programme of recitations and music, vocal and instrumental, was rendered, after which ice cream and cake were served.

A special session of the Orange County Poultry Association was held Thursday afternoon at the premium list arranged for the poultry department of the Orange County Fair Association.

All progressive Democrats should stop and take a look at H. H. Roper's protection policy. The free trade policy is also there, and if the comparison is well studied there is much meat for reflection.

Mrs. Alameda Kidner, the paragon of G. W. Bentley was taken before Justice of the Peace Freeman yesterday afternoon, but her examination was postponed until Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, to give the State an opportunity to secure further evidence in the case. Bentley is still in hiding in the Garden Grove neighborhood.

The Daily Blade, posing as a non-partisan paper, but whose editor is an old-time Democrat, takes exceptions to the manner in which the recent business meeting of the Democratic forces was reported by THE TIMES representative in yesterday's issue. The editor should remember that all residents of Santa Ana do not wear glasses stained with Bourbon Democracy to the extent that they are unable to see anything through them except from a Democratic standpoint.

ANAHEIM.

The boom of anvils again rang out on the still night air Thursday night, but it was not for a Fourth of July meeting this time. It was the way the Democrats have of signaling the choice of a standard-bearer for the coming election. The rattling of anvils nearly 11 o'clock, when the supply of powder gave out, and the quiet and inoffensive citizen was permitted to seek that rest and repose which is supposed to be the reward of the just.

The fruit evaporator started up Thursday on apricots. They expect to contract for over 300 tons in this vicinity altogether.

A force of men and boys are at work making boxes and trays for the fruit.

J. F. Robinson, the Santa Ana horse thief, will have a second trial on Monday before Judge Landell in this city, on a charge of venue from the Santa Ana court.

A number of our orchardists will attend the meeting of the Orange County Poultry Association next to discuss the best method of exterminating the scale pest.

A couple on one of the empty cars of the San Diego freight train broke Thursday morning just below the depot, delaying the train some fifteen minutes.

The cloudy days and foggy nights are over and we are now enjoying a few bright sunshines. This is good growing weather.

Judge Wilson of Los Angeles has been selected to deliver the oration on the Fourth of July at Santa Ana.

Judge Towner of Santa Ana will be present.

dent of the day, and Miss Lulu James of this city will read the Declaration of Independence. A splendid selection all around. St. Catherine's Academy will close the most interesting exercises on Thursday of next week.

The school trustees of the Anaheim school district sat yesterday as a board of equality and will continue as such Monday and Tuesday.

Up to yesterday about $300 had been raised by the Finance Committee of the fourth of July celebration. This will be a most interesting feature of the day's enjoyment.

There was a very large attendance of people from all parts of the county in Kroeger's Hall yesterday afternoon to listen to the able address of Richard Gird, Esq., of the Chino ranch, on beet sugar matters. Probably no one in this state is better able to speak understandingly upon this subject than Mr. Gird, and his statements, bristling with facts and figures and embodying the actual results of the working of the Chino factory, the largest in the world, were listened to with marked attention by the large audience.

At the close of Mr. Gird's address there were a large number of applications for shares in the new Anaheim sugar factory, which is being organized by over 300 shares. Mr. Gird remained in Anaheim over night and arrangements were being made at the close of this report to tender him a reception and serenade by the Anaheim military band.

G. F. Quigley, Will Mack, S. McMullen and E. J. Robertson of San Francisco are recent visitors to this city.

P. Newmark, Charles B. Mahone, J. A. Dockweiler, E. W. Crowell, A. J. Blair and M. J. Alvares of Los Angeles were here the past week, registered at the Commercial.

Thomas Worne and wife of Newport were among the arrivals Friday.

In a grand basket picnic, State Lecturer J. L. Gilbert and assistant Burdette Cornell will be present and address the farmers of the county on the issues of the day.

SANTA BARBARA.

The Ocean End of the Outfall Sewer Successfully Laid.

The ocean end of the outfall sewer was successfully laid yesterday morning early. The last 500 feet extends into the ocean, and Messrs. Hobson and Mathewson, the sewer contractors, made a sub-contract with Thomas Nixon to lay the ocean end.

The sewer is twenty inches in diameter and of heavy iron pipe, in lengths of twenty feet; each length weighs 1500 pounds. The last 500 feet had been put together and supported on heavy wooden wheels.

The wheels were similar to the front wheels of a wagon, with a stiff tongue. These were placed at intervals of twenty feet, and were high enough for the pipe to swing clear of the ground underneath the axles.

In less than half an hour the country that lay being in readiness a little before 5 o'clock yesterday morning, when the whole thing was run straight out into the ocean in less than three-quarters of an hour without any hindrance. The water at the end of the sewer is 15 feet at low tide.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hassinger left yesterday for a visit to Los Angeles.

Mrs. Julia Warnholtz was examined by Drs. Studdard and Shamer and adjudged insane on Friday. She has twice before been confined for a short time in an asylum.

Prof. E. B. Hoover and C. D. Hoover, of the Santa Barbara Business College, went north to San Francisco last night on the steamer Columbia.

Rev. Dr. John Hall and son, Dr. Richard J. Hall, while driving on Garden street yesterday forenoon, were thrown out and slightly injured. The accident was caused by the cart wheel coming off in leaving the railroad track. The horse ran home with the wreck.

Dr. John Hall of New York City will preach in the Presbyterian Church this morning at the usual hour, and in the evening at the Methodist Episcopal Church. He will be a union service, also addressed by him.

There will be a union service of praise and thanksgiving in the Methodist Episcopal Church this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Rev. Philip Thacher will deliver a lecture on "Revival Theology and Unitarianism" in Unity Church this evening at 7:30.

The Congregational Church the pastor will deliver a class address to the graduated high school students in the morning.

F. J. Hart and wife of Los Angeles are guests at the Arlington.

Rev. Alexander Dubay of Framingham, Ill., and Miss H. E. Dargin of Boston, Mass., will leave today via the Santa Fe line for their Eastern homes.

Frank Mott, one of the boulevard contractors, left yesterday morning for a short visit to Los Angeles.

Francis D. Hovey, living some miles up the Coast, came in yesterday driving four horses abreast with a load of honey. In 1884 he got from the same number of bees twelve tons last year, but a poor year he got three tons and this year less than one ton. The beekeeper who has any honey to market this year is the exception.

This schooner, which sailed yesterday morning with another outfit of catchers for the islands, H. A. Rogers went with the party and they went in his interest.

Three seals, which were confined in a box for some days and nights on the wharf, made such a plaintive appeal for liberty that some kind-hearted person, it is supposed, opened the box and released them, the rights of two ages at least they are gone and nobody seems to know anything about it.

The crop outlook is quite favorable. Notwithstanding the light rainfall last winter, if the season is favorable from now on beans and corn will be good. Corn in Santa Barbara and Ventura counties looks especially good and promises a fine yield.

The Corona went north last evening, taking twenty-three passengers from this place.

FULLERTON.

E. W. Lymburner, the pugilist, has returned from the Los Angeles County Hospital, but suffers considerably from his bruises yet. He says he will retire from the arena.

Maj. Klokke of Los Angeles has spent some time in Fullerton energetically working for the World's Fair appropriation from the county. Maj. Klokke also has a beautiful orange grove near here.

Col. Bob Northam has returned from the north and is at work again at his office. On being asked about the examination of their claim they claim to have had with him, he said he wanted it distinctly understood the Examiner was not running his politics this fall.

W. J. Smith and daughter, Miss Hannah, have gone on an extended visit to relatives in the Eastern States.

Mrs. St. John and Waite will close work on their asphaltum works after two weeks until they repair the well. After this the prospects are they will go to work with the new asphaltum works and push the many strong stock company and push the many strong stock company and push the many strong stock company.

Shipping of potatoes is beginning to be lively. There will be from sixty to seventy-five cars shipped from here this season.

Hardly a day passes now that does not bring some parties and new letters from parties inquiring about the bank prospects. Capitalists are investigating and looking at the project in a very favorable light and are beginning to sign for its organization at an early date.

CATALINA.

A great amount of interest is being taken in the approaching visit of the Knights Templar, July 2, and also in the visit of the Catalina Yacht Club on the same date. The knights are expected 300 strong, and every member of the yacht club will be here. Great preparations have been made for a fitting reception to the visitors, and the week will be the most eventful of the season. Both organizations have arranged for headquarters at the Metropole.

The Pavilion is nearing completion and will be opened with a ball in honor of the visitors, and numerous excursions about the island. The Wilmington Transportation Company has two power launches, which started yesterday on regular trips to Seal Rock and White's Valley. The Lulda is here and will make regular trips around the island.

Beginning July 1 there will be three steamers daily, the Hermosa leaving San Pedro for two trips and the Falcon from Redondo for one trip over and back. This arrangement will bring the steamers into connector with four railroads and will make the island more popular than ever.

Leutsy, C. G. and J. E. McMahon, U.S.A., Prof. Alvin, Albuquerque, and Robert L. McCook came over together on a fishing trip.

J. W. Vaughn and Robert Evan McGregor registered at the Metropole yesterday.

Chas. Shaw and wife are here for the season.

W. Vandervoort and R. T. Vandervoort of Pasadena are enthusiastic fishermen and seldom return empty handed from their trips.

The power launch Mascot made the run from White's Valley yesterday in thirty-six minutes.

A Fourth of July celebration is being arranged for boat races, swimming contests and a display of fireworks will be the main features.

JAY GOULD'S WEALTH.

Computing the Fortune of the Little Wizard of Wall Street.

[New York Herald.]

"How much is Jay Gould worth? I'm sure I don't know. Perhaps he could tell you if he wanted to, but I don't believe that anybody else could—not even the brokers who have acted for him for years."

It was an old Wall street man who spoke—one of the great number who once had money, but who now have none; one of those men whose experiences in the financial whirl have been varied and exciting; one of those men who expect to be rich again, to again own fast horses and costly tricar-brac, to again negotiate in thousands, who may, indeed, retrieve themselves, and one of those who, over a sociable glass, invariably become reminiscent.

"But I can tell you," he went on, "of something that may give you an idea of the extent of his possessions now. Several years ago he was heavily loaded on the stock market. At the same time the impression had some way gone abroad that he was in the hole for money. The impression was so strong, although, as you will see, there was absolutely no foundation for it, that he and his brokers were seriously embarrassed. It was impossible to get rid of his stocks. Every time the market showed a little strength and some were offered down it would go, and to hold it the stocks would have to be bought again. There seemed to be a general agreement all over the country that at last an opportunity had come to squeeze Mr. Gould."

"It was apparent that something must be done to remove the impression, and this was what was done. One of Mr. Gould's most important brokers, whose name was taken out of the country that he was interested with him, caused the announcement to be made that they had been appointed a committee to inspect Mr. Gould's securities and ascertain his exact financial condition. It wasn't stated by whom they had been appointed, and of course the relation-ship with Mr. Gould was not generally known."

"The interest in their investigation was wide-spread among speculators and brokers. The result was announced by the broker. He stated that he and the capitalist had visited Mr. Gould's office and that Mr. Gould had displayed all of his securities. They had, he said, counted over $80,000,000 worth of them, actual market value, and had got tired and stopped when there were plenty more left. The effect of this was that the public concluded that Mr. Gould was practically impregnable, and the great out of the deal he was in at a profit."

"But the broker told me more about it some time before he died. He said that as a matter of fact he had counted $75,000,000 worth of securities and that there were more left. And all of them were Jay Gould's actual property, made up in his name and bearing no indorsements whatever, which would show that he had not borrowed them. Now that was several years ago. The prices of the securities of some of the corporations in which he is known to have held his interest have advanced from 50 to 75 per cent. What then, is he worth today?"

Somewhat Bizarre.

[Sacramento Bee.]

There is one particular plank in this Democratic platform which is about the most utterly brain thing that ever went into a national political document. It is this:

"We pledge the Democratic party to a relentless opposition to the Republican policy of profligate expenditure, which, in the short space of two years, has squandered an enormous surplus and emptied an overflowing treasury, after piling new burdens of taxation upon the already overtaxed labor of the country."

When we consider that the representative and leading Democratic journals of the land, which dubbed a Republican law-making body the Billion Dollar Congress, referred to its successor as the Billion-and-a-half Dollar Congress, and pleaded with it, in the name of God and Gen. Jackson, to stop its blind, reckless and criminal waste, or it would doom the Democratic candidate to defeat—the overpowering check of this spasm of economical repentance strikes us almost breathless.

The opening of a new jewelry house is the last thing one would think would cause a stir at this time of the year in Los Angeles. But in California there is no accounting for anything. Everything is exceptional. The stock at the new establishment just opened at No. 140 North Spring street is certainly not in a space hardly larger than many establishments would give to watches alone is massed a general assortment of jewelry, silversware, diamonds, optical goods, etc., the richness and beauty and magnificence of which is absolutely dazzling. It is the most remarkable exhibition of "much in little" to be seen in the city.

One of the features of the Fourth of July celebration, which is to take place in the afternoon will be the patriotic songs by about 40 of the public school children, assisted by a full band under the direction of Prof. Willhartz. The schools have been rehearsing the "Star Spangled Banner," the "Red, White and Blue" and "America" for the last two weeks, and the general rehearsal of all will be held at the Pavilion next Saturday at 3 p.m., when seats on the mammoth platform to be constructed for the occasion will be assigned to the children.

Rev. Dr. Thomas W. Haskins officiates at Christ Church tomorrow for the last time before surrendering the pastorate to the rector, the Rev. R. S. Clark from Louisiana, who will enter upon his new duties the first Sunday in July. Dr. Haskins' retirement is caused by the very able and efficient health which made his retirement imperative from all active work for a season, and will be followed by the best wishes and earnest desire of hosts of friends for his speedy recovery.

Yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock an express wagon loaded with a couple of cans of coal oil crept quite an excitement around South Spring street opposite the Los Angeles Theater. For some unaccountable reason the oil exploded and in about three seconds the wagon was in flames. The wagon was destroyed, and had not the horse been cut loose at once it would have perished. The wagon was drawn out in the middle of the street and no further damage was done.

Bishop Mallalieu left San Francisco yesterday on the steamer Gaelic on an inspection of the Methodist missions of Japan, Corea, China and India and then around the world. He is accompanied by his son, W. E. Mallalieu, who will act as his private secretary. It is understood that arrangements have been made between Bishop Mallalieu and Bishop Vincent, whereby the latter will continue to reside in Buffalo during the coming year.

New Sunday time table on Southern Pacific will be found in this paper. First train for Santa Monica leaves Arcade depot 8:30 a.m. Last train leaves Santa Monica 8:30 p.m. and the Cañon 7:30 p.m. Douglas' band at Santa Monica, and tables and benches for picnickers at Rustic Cañon. Half rates to all the beaches today.

An unusually attractive programme will be presented at the Y.M.C.A. this afternoon. Major Dane, the eloquent lecturer, will speak, and Miss Katharine Kimball, the popular soprano, will sing for a quarter of an hour before the service, commencing at 2:45. A. W. Hare and an orchestra will conduct a song service.

About the end of August Mrs. Macleod, principal of the Art school, will conduct a sketching excursion, open to all students, to Catalina. Till then the usual classes will continue; also the regular life classes on Thursday and Saturday afternoons, and the outdoor sketching classes on Wednesday afternoons.

WILHELM BUSCH.

The Funniest of Germany's Funny Men.

He Makes Pictures and Writes Jingles.

That Set all the Little Deutechers Wild.

A Brief Biographical Sketch of His Career—Caricature Drawing and Rhyming His Natural Mode of Expression.

HANOVER, June 12.—[Special Correspondence of THE TIMES.] I wonder if there is a German living who does not know Busch?

His name has become a household word in German families. If anything comical happens, they exclaim: "Almost as funny as Busch!"

Even the little children's faces beam with joy when he is mentioned. And there is nothing funnier than a story told in rhymes and caricature by Wilhelm Busch!

For instance, a series of pictures represents two bad boys of Corinth teasing Diogenes, who is sitting in his barrel. He warns them to stop their tricks, but without paying the least attention the little Greeks begin to roll the barrel. Suddenly their togas get hitched on nails; as soon as Diogenes perceives this he in his turn rolls the barrel round and round, and when at last he crawls out into the sun, scratching himself, the boys lie on the ground rolled flat as pancakes. The humor of these caricatures is heightened by the absurdity of the accompanying doggerels, though half of their laugh-compelling power lies in peculiarities of dialect and grammar, of which no one but a German can feel the force.

His books, like the "Pious Helena," "Mr. and Mrs. Knoepf," have sold by the hundred thousands. If he had made all the profits he would be a millionaire now, and even though the publishers have, as he says, taken more than their share, he is better off than many of the foremost artists who wield the chisel or brush.

In looking over a long series of his caricatures one is above all struck by the simplicity of the means he employs to achieve the most comical results, a simplicity which reminds one of the child's rude attempts at drawing. His work can be seen in any school. Cleverly introducing three or four lines into an oval he executes a face expressing the most rollicking humor. He succeeds in making the simplest inanimate object, like a chair or a table, do something, and in this Busch excels. His "good things" will be enjoyed just as much as a hundred years hence as today.

He has never attempted to caricature politics, never uttered epigrams upon conspicuous persons, nor do we learn the bad manners and morals of the time from him; nothing malignant, unparliamentary, impure, mean, has ever borne his signature. He is always delightfully innocent, with a broad and boisterous humor. The adventures of a chignon, the mischievous tricks of a monkey who upsets a whole household, the experiences of a man falling into doggerels, being baked alive are subjects sufficiently interesting for his pen.

He never uses a model but draws everything from imagination with a simple pen which also serves him for writing.

His imagination is so fertile that when a publisher, who was ordering a book, once asked him when it would be finished, he replied: "In a week or two, perhaps sooner!" As soon as this became known his publishers continually annoyed him with asking him to lower his prices.

Busch is a very pleasant person to meet, but in his manners entirely different from what the reader might imagine. He has a stout figure and a full face with a long gray beard, small vivacious eyes beaming with good-natured mischief, a friendly mouth, with some slight motion even when silent. His speech is slow, almost dragging; he even stutters somewhat now and then. His conversation is amiable throughout, always full of meaning but simple in tone, he expresses his wit and humor only by long to his pen, and though he can hardly write a letter without introducing a sketch as a rhyme, his oral utterances on the contrary show no trace of these qualities. Only when he is jolly—he was always a heavy drinker—he talks continually in doggerels, always using the last word of the speaker as a rhyme for his answer.

Even as a boy he showed the close observation and keen perception which are the leading characteristics of every caricaturist. He saw peculiarities where the general eye did not detect them.

In school he was continually drawing caricatures of the boys as well as the teachers on his desk, slate and books, which often resulted in fights with his schoolmates and a good whipping from his mother.

He, however, set little importance on his skill, it being his ambition to become a painter, and as his father was a well-to-do peasant he was granted several years of study in Düsseldorf, München and Antwerp. He was rather indolent, indulging a good deal in beer and late hours, and his examination was not very satisfactory.

The composition was careless and the drawing faulty, though the faces expressed a good deal of humor which was entirely out of place. The inspectors, tapping him on the shoulder in a friendly manner, advised him, "You had better let it up. You will never make a painter!" Quite discouraged, he packed his bundle and went traveling from town to town; he studied but little, only now and then making a caricature to please himself.

Even in Italy he did not feel inspired and produced nothing but an occasional caricature of the great masterpieces of art, which, however, he was too shy to show to anybody.

When he returned to Munich he was introduced in the Hofbrauhaus to the editor of the Fliegende Blätter, who was in search of a caricaturist and who induced Busch to show him his collection of caricatures. This led to an engagement for several years at the Fliegende Blätter, which quickly made Busch popular throughout Germany.

After several successful years, during which he published from eighteen to twenty-four books, he retired to Wiedenah, a pleasant little town near Hanover, where he was born nearly sixty years ago. He has built a handsome villa on the original estate of his parents. The country is very picturesque, being level and healthy-like to a large extent; but he only likes it the better for that, as it is an excellent place for bee keeping, which has become his hobby in his years. Just as a Basal thought himself a good cook, Busch prides himself on being a great apian. He rests on his laurels and leads the most indolent life possible, spending the whole day among his beehives, which he treats in the most scientific manner and in bad weather even prepares the syrup for them himself. His friends assert that he is more careful in sheltering his bees against the vicissitudes of the temperature than his own children, of whom—like a good German burgher—he has quite a number. Whoever visits him is served with a honeycomb and the host is greatly offended if he is not complimented on his excellence.

If one speaks admiringly of his work he says good humoredly, "Yes, yes, but what have you to say to my honey. Isn't it superb? One stock of those bees alone have brought me 800 pounds of that delicious stuff."

And he who has made up almost every object imaginable, when asked to write something about the bees which he knows so closely, smilingly shakes his head. "I can't do it—I respect them too much."

SOCIAL DIVERSIONS IN CREEDS.

A Glimpse of the Young Western Mining Camp's Four Hundred. (Harper's Weekly.)

The social life of Creeds is much more interesting than outputs and ore values. There were several social functions while I was there, which were the happy spirit of the place. There was a prize fight at Billy Woods's, a pie-eating match at Kernan's, a Mexican circus in the bottom near Wagon Wheel Gap, a religious service at Watson and Brannigan's gambling house, and the first wedding in the history of the town.

I was sorry to miss the last, especially as three prominent citizens, misunderstanding the purpose of my visit to Creeds, took the trouble to scour the mountain side for me, in order that I might photograph the wedding party in a group, which I should have been delighted to do. The bride was the sister of Billy Woods's barkeeper and "Stony" Sargeant, a faro dealer at "Stony" Smith's, was the bridegroom. The justice of the peace, whose name I forgot, performed the ceremony, and Edw. Da Vinne, the tramp poet, offered a few appropriate and well-chosen remarks, after which Woods and Smith, who run rival gambling houses, outdid each other in the extravagant practice of opening wine. All of these are prominent citizens and the event is memorable.

I met several of these prominent citizens while in Creeds, and found them affable. "Billy" Woods fights, and rejoices in it, at $10 pounds, and is used in the fact a New York paper once devoted five columns to his personality. His reputation saved him expense of paying men to keep order. Bob Ford, who shot Jesse James, was another prominent citizen of my acquaintance. He does not look like a desperado, but has a loutish, apologetic air, which is explained by the fact that he shot Jesse James in the back, when the latter was engaged in the innocent work of hanging a picture on the wall. Ford has never quite recovered from the fight he received when he found out who it was he had killed.

"Bat" Masterson was of an entirely different class. He dealt for Watrous and has killed twenty-eight men, once three together. One night when he was off duty, I saw a drunken man slap his face, and the silence was so great that we could hear the electric light spitter in the next room, but Masterson only laughed and told the man to come when he was sober.

"Troublesome Tom" Cady acted as a capper for "Soapy" Smith and played the shell game during the day. He was very grateful to me for teaching him a much superior method in which the game is played in the effete East. His master, "Soapy" Smith was a very bad man, indeed, and hired at least twelve men to lead the prospector with a little money, and the undertaker who had just arrived up to the numerous tables in his gambling saloon, where they were robbed in various ways, and so openly that they deserved to lose all that was taken from them.

A Larval of Human Hair.

An old Indian chief named La Pier, who lives on the upper Columbia River, has in his possession a gruesome relic of the past in the shape of a larval made of human hair. It is fifty feet long and of variegated colors, and the hair enters into its composition is exclusively woman's hair, mostly the dark tresses of women who once were doubtless famous, locally at least, as brunettes beauties. Further along in the rope may be noted hair of brown and of auburn, and in half a dozen places of yellow. Hair jet black, straw-colored and even red is shown, but the saddest of all to contemplate are the long tresses of gray and white which are twisted yards long in places in the strange larva. It is estimated that at least three women must have been scalped to furnish the material for this fearful relic. The owner is said to set a very rich value upon it, and refuses to part with it under any consideration. He shows it with great reluctance, and is unwilling to tell anything about its history.

The Cottage by the Sea.

It's been written up in story, it's been sung in numbers sweet; It has captivated thousands with its symmetrical complete—Like a dream from the Atlantic it has risen fair and free.

With its beauty so romantic—has 'Tis poets sing it so. But it's like a dream—a vision—though the poets sing it so. It might have been Elysian half a hundred years ago.

But now it's full of business; when that cottage you shall seek, You will find the sign up: "Boarders: Twenty dollars a week."

A Question of Accounts.

The bookkeeper (timidly). Shall I charge the money expended on that Southern trip of yours to campaign expenses, Mr. Hill?

David B. (morosely). No, damn it, no. Charge it to Profit and Loss, or else open an account with Experience and charge it there.

THE BEACH OF FALESA.

THE NARRATIVE OF A SOUTH SEA TRADER.

By Robert Louis Stevenson.

[Copyright, 1892, by the Author.]

CHAPTER I.

A SOUTH SEA TRADER.

I saw that island first when it was neither night nor morning. The moon was to the west, setting, but still bright and bright. To the east, and right amidships of the dawn, which was all pink, the day star sparkled like a diamond.

The land breeze blew in our faces, and smelt strong of wild time and vanilla; other things besides, but these were the most plain; and the chill of it set me sneezing. I should say I had been for years on a low island near the line, living for the most part solitary among natives. Here was a fresh experience; even the tongue would be strange to me; and the look of these woods and mountains, and the rare smell of them, renewed my blood.

The captain blew out the binnacle lamp. "There!" said he, "there goes a bit of smoke, Mr. Wiltshire, behind the break of the reef. That's Falea, where your station is, the last village to the east; nobody lives to windward—I don't know why. Take my glass, and you can make the houses out."

I took the glass; and the shores leaped nearer, and I saw the tangle of the woods and beach of the surf, and the brown roofs and black sides of houses peeped among the trees.

"Do you catch a bit of white there to the east?" said the captain. "That's your house. Coral built, stands high, veranda you could walk on three abreast; best station in the South Pacific. Who did he die of? No, no, he died and shook me by the hand. I've dropped into a soft thing here," says he. "So you have," says I, "and time, too?" Poor Johnny! I never saw him again but the once, and then he had changed his time—couldn't get on with the natives or the white or something; and the next time we came around there he was dead and buried. I took and put up a bit of a stick to him, John Adams, obit 1848. Go thou, and do likewise. I missed that man. I never could see much harm in Johnny."

"Some kind of sickness," said the captain. "It appears it took him sudden. Seems he got up in the night and filled up upon painkillers and Kennedy's Discovery. No go—he was booked beyond Kennedy. Then he had tried to open a case of gin, and he was not strong enough. Then he must have turned to and run on the veranda and capsize over the rail. When they found him, the next day, he was clean crazy—carried on all the time about somebody watering his copra. Poor Johnny!"

"Was it thought to be the island?" I asked. "Well, it was thought to be the island or the trouble, or something," he replied. "I never could hear but what it was a healthy place. One last man, Vintago, never took a hair of his head because of the beach—said he was afraid of Black Jack and Case and Whistling Jimmie, who was still alive at the time, but got drowned soon after Edward when drunk. As for old Capt. Randall, he's been here some time since 1840-45. I never could see much harm in Billy nor much change. Seems as if he might live to be Old Kafooleum. No, I guess it's healthy."

"There's a boat coming now," said I. "She's right in the pass; looks to be a sixteen-foot whale; two white men in the stern sheets."

"That's the boat that drowned Whistling Jimmie?" cried the captain; "let's see the glass. Yes, that's Case, sure enough, and the darky. They've got a gallows bad reputation, but you know what the beach is for, for a while. My belief is that Whistling Jimmie was the worst of the trouble; and he's gone to glory, you see. What'll you bet they ain't after him? Lay you five to two they take six cases."

When these two traders came aboard I was pleased with the look of them, once or, rather with the looks of both, and the speech of one. I was sick for white neighbors after my four years at the line, which I always counted years of prison; getting tabooed and going down to the Speck House to see and get taken where I could get the goods, and break, and then repenting sitting in my house at night with the lamp for company; or walking on the beach and wondering what kind of a fool to call myself for being where I was. There were no other whites upon my island, and when he came to me (as I have to tell customers made the most of the society. Now to see these two when they came aboard was a pleasure. One was a negro, to be sure; but they were both rigged out smart in striped pajamas and straw hats, and Case would have passed muster in a city. He was a low and smallish, had a hawk's nose to his face, pale eyes and his beard trimmed with scissors. No man knew his country, beyond he was of English speech; and it was clear he came of a good family, and was splendidly educated. He was accomplished, too; played the accordion first rate; and gave him a piece of string or a cork or a pack of cards, and he could show you tricks equal to any professional. He could speak when he chose to, and he was a good deal of a talker. He chose he could blaspheme worse than a Yankee boatswain, and talk smart to sicken a Kanaka. The way he thought would pay best at the moment, that was Case's way, and it always seemed to come natural and like as if he was born to it. He was the cousin of a lion, and the cunning of a rat; and if he's not in hell today, there's no such place. I know but one good point to the man—that he was fond of his wife and kind to her. She was a Samoa woman, and dyed her hair red, Samoa style; and when he came to me (as I have to tell of) they found one strange thing—that he had made a will, like a Christian, and the widow got the lot; all his, they said, and all Black Jack's and the most of Billy Randall's in the bargain, for she was Case's wife, and the poor devil, so she went off home in the schooner Mama, and does the lady to this day in her own place.

But of all this on that first morning I knew no more than a fly. Case used me like a gentleman and like a friend, made me welcome to Falea, and put his arms round me (as I have to tell of) the vices at my disposal, which was the more helpful from my ignorance of the natives. All the earlier part of the day we sat drinking better acquaintance in the cabin, and I never heard a man talk more in a labor ship, and west. The captain, when he came, had found the station closed, the keys left with the native pastor, and a letter from the runaway, confessing he was fairly frightened of his life. Since then the firm had not been represented and of course there was no cargo. The wind, besides, was fair. The captain hoped he could make his next island by dawn, with good tide, and the business of landing my trade was gone about lively. There was no call for me to fool with it. Case said: nobody would touch my things, every one was honest in Falea, only about chickens or an odd knife or a bit of kumukumu, and a native could wait to sit quiet till the vessel left, then come strutting to his house, see old Capt. Randall, the father of the beach, take pot luck, and go home to sleep when it got dark. So it was high noon, and the schooner was under way before I had time to get my bearings.

I had a glass or two on board; I was just off a long cruise, and the ground heaved under me like a ship's deck. The world was like all new painted; my foot went along to music; Falea might have been Fiddler's Green, if there were a place and a woman to marry the ply if there isn't! It was good to foot the grass; to look aloft at the green mountains, to see the men with their green wreaths and the women with their bright dresses, red and blue. On we went, in the strong sun and the sea breeze, and the women of Falea, the children in the town came trotting after with their shaven heads and brown bodies, and raising a thin kind of a cheer in our wake, like crowing poultry.

"By the by," said Case, we must get your wife, Mr. Wiltshire, to her in the boat. "That's so," said I, "I had forgotten."

There was a crowd of girls about us, and I pulled myself up and looked among them like a Bashan. They were all dressed out for the sake of the ship being in; and the women of Falea are a handsome lot to see. If they have a fault, they are a trifle broad in the beam, and I was just thinking so when Case touched me.

"That's pretty," says he. "I saw one coming on the other side along the beach, and she was young, and very slender for an island maid, with a long face, a high forehead and a shy, strange, bluish look, between a cat's and a baby's."

"Who's she?" said I. "She'll do," said Case. "That's Uma," said Case, and he called her to him, and she came to the native. I didn't know what he said, but when he was in the midst he looked up at me quick and timid like a child dodging a blow, then down again, and presently smiled. She had a wide mouth, the lips and the chin cut like a statue, and she smiled as if she were a moment and was gone. Then she stood with her head bent and heard Case to an end, spoke back in the pretty Polynesian voice, looking him full in the face, heard him again in answer, and then with an obeisance started off. I got just a share of the bow, but never another shot of her eye, and there was no more word of smiling.

"I guess it's all right," said Case. "I guess you can have her: I'll make it square with the old lady. You can have your pick of the lot for a plug of tobacco," he added cheerily, and I put my head up in that if I had run from a girl upon my wedding night.

The sun was down, the sky all on fire, and the lamp had been some time lighted, when Case came back with Uma and the negro. She was dressed and scented; her kilt was of fine tapa, looking richer in the folds than any silk; her bust, which was of the color of dark honey, she wore bare only for some half a dozen necklaces of seeds and flowers, and behind her ears and in her hair she had the carlet tresses of the hibiscus. She showed the best bearing for a bride conceivable, serious and still, and I thought shame, to stand up with her in that mean house and before that grinning negro. I thought again, I say, for the mountebank with a big paper collar, the book he made believe to read from was an old volume of a novel, and the words of his service not fit to be set down. My conscience smote me when we joined hands, and when she got her certificate I was tempted to throw up the bargain and confess. What a document it was! It was Case that wrote it, signatures and all, in a leaf out of the ledger.

A nice paper to put in a girl's hand and see her hide it away like gold. A man might easily feel cheap for less. But it was the practice in these parts, and as I took my oath not to do the missionaries. If they had left the natives be, I had never needed this deception, but taken all the wives I wished, and left them when I pleased with a clear conscience.

The more ashamed I was, the more hurried I was to be gone, and our desire thus jumping together, I made the remark of a change in the traders. Case had been all eagerness to keep me, now, as though he had attained a purpose, he seemed all eagerness to have me go. Uma, he said, could show me to his house, and the three bade us farewell indoors.

The night was nearly come; the village smelt of trees and flowers and the sea and the breadfruit cooking; there came a fine roll of sea from the reef, and from a distance, among the woods and the mountains, many sounds of men and children. It did me good to breathe free air; it did me good to be done with the captain and see, instead, the creature at my side. I felt for all the world as though she was some girl at home in the old country, and, forgetting myself for the minute, took her hand to walk with. Her fingers nestled in mine, I heard her breathe deep and quick, and all at once she caught my hand to her face and pressed it there.

"You good!" she cried, and ran ahead of me, and stopped and looked back and smiled, and ran ahead of me again, guiding me through the edge of the bush and by a quiet way to my own house.

The truth is, Case had done the courting for me in style—told her I was mad to have her, and cared nothing for the consequences; and the poor devil, knowing that which I was still ignorant of, believed it, every word, and had her head night turned with vanity and gratitude. Now, of all this I had no guess; I was one of those most opposed to any nonsense about native women, having seen so many whites eaten up by the natives, and her red flowers and seeds, that were quite as bright as jeryels, only larger—it came over me she was a kind of countess really, dressed to hear great singers at a concert, and no even mate for a poor trader like myself.

The house was the house of the house, and while I was still without I saw a match flash and the lamplight kindle the windows. The station was a wonderful fine place, coral built, with quite a wide veranda, and the main room high and wide. My chests and cases had been piled in, and made rather a mess; and there, in the thick of the confusion, stood Uma by the table awaiting me. Her shadow fell all over me, and behind her into the hollow of the iron roof, she stood against it bright, the lamplight shining on her skin. I stopped at the door, and she looked at me, not speaking, with eyes that were eager and yet daunted; then she touched herself on her bosom, and said, "My wife," she said. It had never taken me like that before, but the want of her took and shook all through me like the wind in the luff of a sail.

I could not speak if I had wanted; and if I could I would not. I was ashamed to be so much moved about, a native—ashamed of the marriage, too, and the certificate she had treasured in her kilt; and I turned aside and made believe to rummage among my cases. The first thing I lighted on was a case of gin, the only one I had brought, and, partly for the girls' sake, and partly for horror of the recollections of old Randall, took a sudden resolve. I pried the lid off. One by one I drew the corks from the bottles with a pocket corkscrew, and sent Uma out to pour the stuff from the veranda.

She came back after the last, and looked at me as I poured. "What do you do that?" she asked. "No good," said I, for I was now a little better master of my tongue. "Man he drink, he no good."

She agreed with this, but kept considering. "Why you bring him?" she asked presently. "Suppose you no want drink you no bring him think."

"That's all right," said I. "One time I want drink too much; now no want. You see, I no savvy, I get one little wife. Suppose I drink gin, my little wife be 'frail.'"

To speak to her kindly was about more than I was fit for; I had made my row I would never on my weakness with a native, and I had nothing for it but to stop.

She stood looking graven down at me where I sat by the open case. "I think you good man," she said. And suddenly she had fallen before me on the floor. "I belong you all-a-same pig!" she cried.

PLEDGE TO THE DEAD

From the lily of love that uncloses In the glow of a festival, On the wind that is heavy with roses And shrill with the bugles of bliss, Let it float over the mystical ocean That breaks on the kingdom of night— Oath of eternal devotion.

To the heroes who died for the right They loved, as we love, yet they parted From all that man's spirit can prize: Left woman and child broken-hearted, Staring up at the pitiless skies. Left the tumult of youth, the sweet guer-don.

Hope promised to conquer from Fate— Gave all for the agonized burden Of death for the flag and the State! Where they roam on the slopes of the mountain That only by angels is trod, Where they muse by the crystalline fountain The springs in the garden of God. Are they lost in unspeakable splendor? Do they never look back to the past? Ah! the valiant are constant and tender, And honor can never forget.

Divine in their pitying sadness They grieve for their comrades of earth; They will hear us and start into gladness, And echo the notes of our mirth; They will lift their white hands in a blessing.

We shall know by the tear that it brings— The rapture of friendship confessing— With harps and the waving of wings! In that grim and relentless upheaval Which blesses the world through a curse, Still bringing the good and the true, The Garland of peace on the hearse— They were shattered, consumed and forsaken.

Like the shadows that fly from the dawn: We may never know why they were taken, But we always shall feel they are gone. If the wind that stings over our prairies No longer is solemn with knells— But lovely with flowers and fairies, And sweet with the calm Sabbath bells; If virtue, in cottage and palace, Leads love to the bridal of Pride, 'Tis because out of war's bitter caliche— Our heroes drank deeply—and died!

Ah! grander in doom-stricken glory Than the greatest that linger behind, They shall live in perpetual story Who saved the last of the mankind! For their cause was the cause of the races That languished in slavery's night; And the death that was pale on their faces Has hilled the whole world with its light!

To the clouds and the mountains we breathe it, To the freedom of planet and star: Let the tempests of ocean enwrap it, Let the winds of the night bear it far— Our oath that till manhood shall perish, And honor and virtue shall live, We true to the cause that they cherish, And eternally true to the dead!

WILLIAM WINTER.

A Reminiscence of Lincoln.

Hon. Robert G. Corwin, who is nearing the eighties, and who is quietly spending the remainder of his days in Lebanon, O., the place of his birth, is a delightfully reminiscent old gentleman.

A few days ago, in conversation with some friends, he related an incident in the life of Abraham Lincoln that he not as yet, perhaps, found its way into print.

In the latter 40s and early 50s, when Gov. Corwin and I were law partners in Washington, and when, under Zachary Taylor, Thomas Ewing became Secretary of the Interior (the office being just created and Ewing its first incumbent), there came from Illinois Abraham Lincoln, who was an applicant for the position of Commissioner of the Land Office. He made application to Gov. Corwin for assistance, but the Governor declined, saying that Ewing had just told him that he had made every appointment he (Corwin) had recommended, and he would refuse further to heed his recommendations. Thereupon I told him I would take up his case, which I did. I enlisted as a cousin by marriage, and for six weeks we waged war for Lincoln with Secretary Ewing. Some days we felt certain of success, and on others we saw defeat. The contest ended in the selection of some Jew, whose name Mr. Corwin forgot. Mr. Lincoln made an instantaneous impression on Mr. Corwin, but he did not so much impress the Governor.

At the Chicago convention Gov. Corwin stood by the claims of John McLean but R. G. Corwin, remembering and liking the defeated candidate for the Commission of the Land Office, advocated him.

In 1861, when Mr. Lincoln made up his Cabinet, he appointed this same Caleb B. Smith his Secretary of the Interior, and he sent Gov. Corwin as Minister to Mexico.

Mr. Corwin says that he admired Lincoln so much that whenever they had any law business in Illinois that needed attention after his visit to Washington for the appointment he always sent it to Lincoln.

It may not be generally known that Abraham Lincoln was an unsuccessful candidate for the office of Commissioner of the Land Office.

211 Fanning Bros. Iron Works, SOUTH LOS ANGELES STRE

This is the season of the year when luncheon, afternoon receptions and teas take precedence above all other forms of entertainment. The past week has been one of quiet enjoyment in this respect. One of the most enjoyable of these was the informal afternoon tea given by Mrs. S. C. Hubbell at her lovely home, "Mount Pleasant," in honor of Miss Kate Spence and her friend, Miss Grogston, both of whom expect to leave Los Angeles en route for Europe on Tuesday.

The conservatories, which form so charming a portion of the magnificent grounds surrounding Judge Hubbell's home, had been rife of their floral treasures to do honor to the occasion, and long-stemmed gladioli nodded greetings from parlor, hall and dining-room among other choice blossoms and delicate greens. The library across the hall was decorated with yellow.

During the afternoon Miss Millmore, Miss Daisy Rose, Miss Conger and Miss Soule contributed to the enjoyment of the other guests with musical selections. Refreshments were served at small tables in the parlors, violets forming the dainty decorations. The invited guests were: Misses Spence, Grogston, Grace Stewart, Glassell, Klocke, Patton, Bousall, Forman, Dupuy, Conger, Chapman, Green, Dodsworth, Maxwell, Widney, Workman, Childs, Angell, Millmore, Rose, Morford, Fay, May Stewart, Willis, Kirkhoff, Silant, Lee, O'Melveny, Sale, Duns of the hosts, Johnson, the Misses Houghton, Mmes. Robert Widney and J. W. A. Off.

THE WILLIAMS LUNCHEON.
Another pleasant gathering on Friday afternoon occurred at the home of Mrs. M. H. Williams at No. 119 South Grand avenue. The affair was given in honor of Mrs. Scott, wife of Hon. R. J. Scott of Tacoma, Wash., and mother of Mrs. Williams. Mrs. Scott, with her husband, has for the past seven months enjoyed California climate, but expects soon to return home by way of Denver, Colo., where she has another daughter living. An elaborate luncheon was served and the afternoon was enjoyed as only ladies can when relieved from the presence of their husbands, fathers and brothers. The guests were: Mmes. R. J. Scott, C. B. Woodhead, R. Cochran, W. W. Widney, R. Brown, E. J. Curson, F. R. Warner, E. C. Brown, R. J. Doyle, O. H. Pieper, Z. L. Crawford, Augusta Pilkington, M. A. Crawford, John Beckwith, M. J. Pierpont, M. H. Williams, Miss Eva E. Williams.

THE SALE LUNCHEON.
On Friday afternoon Mrs. H. M. Sale of South Hill street, entertained a company of ladies at a charming luncheon, previous to her departure to Catalina for the summer. The afternoon was delightfully passed in her pleasant parlors, and in the flower-laden dining-room a tempting lunch was served in courses from two tables, one of which had for its centerpiece an arch of nasturtiums, and the other a lovely arrangement of fuchsias. Two young girls, Miss Genevieve Smith and Miss Roberts, friends of the hostess, added largely to the enjoyment of the guests by the piano selections played during the time of repast. The ladies present were: Mmes. H. M. Sale, M. H. Sweeney, H. Anderson, E. Pratt, C. Smith, G. Webb, J. M. Taylor, H. Wilson, S. K. Lindley, T. Glover, M. A. Sattley, C. Munger, J. E. Marsh, Miss McCorkle of Missouri, Mrs. Judge Cody of Chicago, Mrs. Shipman, Mrs. Dr. Davidson and Mrs. Jordan.

PROGRESSIVE EVENING.
Mrs. J. H. F. Peck gave a delightful card party on Wednesday evening at their new home on South Spring street. The evening was arranged as a farewell to her sister, Mrs. William Fetter, of San Francisco, who has been visiting Los Angeles for about two months. The entire floor of this artistic little home was thrown open and tables were arranged throughout the rooms. Different games were indulged in and some very pretty favors were distributed among the lucky winners. A tempting supper was served at 11 o'clock and the guests departed well pleased with their evening's entertainment.

A BIRTHDAY PARTY.
One of the enjoyable events of the week occurred last Wednesday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Morrison, No. 319 West Seventeenth street, in being the eighteenth birthday of their daughter, Ethel Morrison. Quite a number of the friends of the young lady met at Judge Pieper's and from there proceeded to her home where they gave her a genuine surprise. The rooms were handsomely decorated for the occasion and music and games were the order of the evening. After refreshments the guests departed to their homes wishing Miss Ethel many happy returns of the day. Among those present were: Misses Winona and Lulu Pieper, Eva Williams, Lou Little, Lottie G. Dean, Mable Dean, Emma Stein, Rose Smith, Helen Mar Scofield, Lydia Vickery, Grace Ream, Lizzie Field, Ethel Morrison, Mrs. G. C. Morrison, Messrs. Charles Shaffner, George Bacon, Kearney L. Wilcox, John Doyle, Harry Holcomb, John Thomas, Jerome Seidel, Harry Seidel, Harry Williams, Charles Williams, W. T. Field, Elmer Rutz, G. C. Morrison.

ARIZONA GUESTS ENTERTAINED.
The Misses Bowman, of No. 117 East Twenty-eighth street, entertained a few friends Wednesday evening in honor of Misses Sylvia and Florida Kennedy, who are visiting in the city. The guests began to arrive at 8 o'clock and soon the comfortable double parlors were well filled with smiling, happy faces. The rooms echoed with the sound of music and merry voices, and tripping feet kept time to the gay measures. The company were then entertained by giving and guessing difficult characters. The most amusing feature of the evening, however, was the dumb supper, which occasioned much merriment among the company. The first prize was awarded to Miss Whittaker. Mr. Daily receiving the booby.

A WELCOME HOME.
The Misses Kennedy have been attending the University of the Pacific, at San Jose, and left for their home in Arizona Saturday morning.

A WELCOME HOME.
The home of J. M. Johnson, chief clerk of the railway mail service, was the scene of a more than usually enjoyable occasion on Friday evening last, when a number of representatives of the railway mail service gathered to welcome their chief and his family to their recently-built cottage on Twenty-fourth street. The reception was a complete surprise, and to judge from appearances, a very pleasant one to Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, who accorded a most cordial welcome to their unexpected guests. Cards and dancing were the amusements of the evening, and the company was favored with several instrumental solos by Miss Edith Johnson, who has recently returned from a protracted visit in San Francisco. A violin solo, with piano accompaniment by Mr. Johnson and daughter, was enthusiastically enjoyed. Later in the evening refreshments were served, and the visitors departed wishing their host and hostess many years of happiness and prosperity in their newly-made home. Among those present were: J. W. Holland and wife, W. P. Bowen and wife, J. O. McMullen and wife, C. B. McKenzle and wife, Fred Sanborn and wife, Frank Hart and wife, Miss Edith Johnson, Jessie Chandler, Doris Card and Messrs. S. L. Toll, J. Henry Burdick, T. W. Hambrook and Eugene Hart.

Y.M.C.A. SOCIAL.
On Wednesday evening a pleasant social time was had at the Y.M.C.A. Hall under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

The Social Committee, of which Mrs. C. W. Burdick is chairman, had provided a delightful programme, consisting of the following numbers:
Overture—Prof. Chambers' Banjo Club.
Contralto solo—Mrs. J. B. Brown.
Diologue—Cotton children.
Song—"Matrimonial Jargon"—Bill Twiss.
Selection—Prof. Chambers and Mandolin Club.
Recitation—"Artemus Ward's Mormon Lecture"—C. Irwin Jenney.
Selection—Zither Club.
Recitation—"Tim the Wharfart"—Laura Cotton.
After the programme, which was greatly enjoyed and heartily enjoyed, an adjournment was had to the reading-rooms and parlors, where the tables had been spread, and cake and cream were served. The rooms were beautifully decorated with flowers, and the occasion reflected great credit upon the Social Committee of the auxiliary and its efficient chairman.

SOME SUPERBIE PARTIES.
Some of Dr. and Mrs. Morris's West Side friends concluded they would enjoy surprising them, so last Thursday evening, armed with oysters, ice cream, cakes and other good things they took possession of their home in East Los Angeles and proceeded to make themselves at home and when Dr. Morris returned home from a walk he found the table set and the kitchen full of the self-invited guests, cooking oysters and waiting to see the surprise. The doctor was home when they came, and he had the first surprise, and his better half was last but not least. The whole thing was considered by all to be a perfect success.

A most enjoyable surprise party was tendered Miss Maude Cullen at her home, No. 876 West Jefferson street, last Thursday evening in honor of her birthday. The evening was spent in games, music and dancing, after which a delightful repast was served. Among those present were Misses Howes, Kline, Santa Cruz, Harris, Chislett and Alice Kelley; Messrs. Sanborn, Ozman, Smith, Siegel, Kelley, McEwen, Price and Hagan.

Miss Nettie, Creel of East Los Angeles was given a surprise party on Wednesday evening by her friends. The evening was spent in the enjoyment of music, games and refreshments of ice cream and cake.

SOME SOCIAL BATHING.
Mrs. G. B. Bartlett entertained the Oxyd Club on last Monday evening. The subject, "Conan Doyle," was most agreeably disposed of by Misses Foy, Reese, Murphy, Root and Mr. Byram. The music was furnished by Mmes. Bartlett, James Burdett, Wenger, Misses Grace Millmore and Lockhart. The next meeting will be held at the St. Angelo on the first of July.

Miss Grudell entertained some of her friends last Friday evening at the residence of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Gotthelf, on West Seventh street, in honor of Miss Helen Green of San Francisco.

A large number of the ladies of Frank Bartlett, W.R.C., and their friends, went on a pleasure trip on Friday last to the Soldiers' Home. They had a very pleasant time and a good programme. The Baldwin children accompanied them, and other talent, and the boys in blue enjoyed the visit.

Mrs. William Friessner entertained a company of friends at progressive euchre last Tuesday evening.

About 500 people gathered at Immanuel Church last Tuesday evening to enjoy a social. Elaborate refreshments were served, and the evening was one of fraternal enjoyment.

The First Congregational Sunday-school picnic at Long Beach yesterday.

EVENTS TO COME.
Bartlett Post gives its monthly social dance Tuesday evening at G.A.R. Hall, Los Angeles Lodge, Knights of Honor, will celebrate the nineteenth anniversary of the order next Thursday evening at the Y.M.C.A. auditorium. A fine literary and musical programme will be rendered and a cordial welcome is extended to all as the entertainment is entirely free.

Miss Lena Joseph of No. 417 Temple street has issued invitations for a farewell party on next Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Helen Green of San Francisco.

TOKEN OF APPRECIATION.
The most beautiful souvenir given at the Normal commencement exercises was a set of Shakespeare's complete works, "Edition de luxe," eight volumes, bound in limp calf and gold, inclosed in a leather case with gold mountings, appropriately marked. It was sent to Miss Annie Noble of Valle Vista, San Diego county, by her many friends. Miss Noble was one of the class officers and a general favorite at the Normal.

HOMEWARD BOUND.
Judge R. M. Widney, who has been absent in the East for several weeks, is expected home today. He will be accompanied by his daughter, Miss Mattie, who comes from Wellesley to spend her summer vacation.

Dr. West Hughes and his bride (née Corn Jarvis of Louisville) returned to the city last evening from their Eastern tour, and will reside for the present on Adams street, near Figueroa. Miss Jarvis spent last winter in this city as a guest of her uncle, John S. Ward, Esq., and was very popular in society.

his wife and child arrived at the hotel on Friday.
The arrivals this week include: E. S. Fisher and B. R. Johnson of San Francisco, Milo M. Patton, A. N. Wheelock, wife and child of Riverside; J. Torrance and wife of Pasadena, George J. Root, rug of Tucson, Ariz.; Nathan Diamond and wife of San Bernardino, J. B. Banning, Wilmington; J. C. Kline, Los Angeles; Mrs. M. E. Bley, Miss Mattie Bley, Florence, Ariz.; Mrs. G. F. Cook, J. R. Dwyer, wife, son and daughter, San Francisco.

WE ARE TRAVELING.
Mrs. A. E. Pomery of South Hill street is visiting friends and relatives in San Jose.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Forrester of South Pearl street returned Thursday evening from a three days' trip to Simi Valley.

Miss Edith Hitt and Lon Henry, Normal school student, went north on Wednesday's steamer to spend their vacation. Miss Henry will go to Monterey, where her parents reside, and Miss Hitt will visit her brother, Dr. Hitt, at Cayucos.

George Mason and family of Grand avenue leave next week to spend some time at Strawberry Valley.

Mrs. Dr. G. Y. Salmon and daughter Anna of Clinton, Mo., are the guests of Mrs. C. C. Rutherford at No. 385 Whittier street.

Miss Marian Otis, of Tar Tins, went to Redlands yesterday to visit her sister, Mrs. McPherson.

Rev. Burt Estes Howard of Cleveland, O., is in the city at Hotel Lincoln. He will occupy the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church this morning, and may be induced to accept the permanent pastorate.

Mrs. James H. Driver of Riverside arrived in the city last evening, and is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Quiltean, No. 143 West Twenty-fifth street.

Bath of Hill street left for San Francisco last week on the steamer Santa Rosa, to be gone several months. He contemplates a trip to Alaska, and with Mr. and Mrs. Homer King of San Francisco will leave that city about the 27th. Mrs. W. S. Ferguson from Temescal accompanied the party.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

The past week has been a quiet one in musical circles, a few private musicales, students' recitals and the usual rehearsals making up the record.

This week the Los Angeles public will again have the pleasure of listening to the Apollo Club, which will give its summer concert next Thursday evening at the Los Angeles Theater. The Hamilton string quartet will assist, one of their numbers being an arrangement for strings of the Adagio from the "Sonata Pathétique" by Beethoven.

THE WILLIAMS RECITAL.
Prof. Willmarth and his pupils gave a recital last Wednesday evening at Temperance Temple, which drew an appreciative audience. H. C. Portway's fine voice was heard to advantage, and the meritorious, if somewhat ancient, "Zampa," which all music lovers reverse for dear dear Harold's sake, was one of the numbers. Miss Mary Anne Crabbe played Beethoven's sonata. While a simpler sonata than that of the old master would perhaps have been better adapted to the power of a pupil, it was amply sufficient for a display of talent, she did creditable work.

Participating were Misses Carrie Stratton, Anna Cleave, Clara Smith, Justine Newhart and Master Xylus Dunswood.

THE BRADFORD RECITAL.
The musical programme rendered by Mrs. L. P. Bradford and pupils last Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Bradford, No. 653 South Workman street, was a very pleasing one. The pupils participated were Misses O. W. Wilkins, Ina Odell, Leone Moore and Mrs. Jennie Weaver. A feature of the instrumental work was the fact that the solos were, almost without exception, played from memory and with most taste and expression than is possible when the music is confined to notes. A number of piano trios were given. "Les Saisons," by Mrs. Bradford and Miss Josie Wilkinson, was well performed. Mrs. Ross and Mrs. Bradford rendered "Tourists' March," "Qui Vive" and "Calli von Bagdad."

A large number of the ladies of Frank Bartlett, W.R.C., and their friends, went on a pleasure trip on Friday last to the Soldiers' Home. They had a very pleasant time and a good programme. The Baldwin children accompanied them, and other talent, and the boys in blue enjoyed the visit.

LIFE AT THE BEACH.
Notwithstanding the many gray days, there has been a goodly number of arrivals at Hotel Arcadia during the past week, and judging from the array of saratogas one would judge they had come to stay. There is much musical talent among the guests, and two very fine concerts, impromptu affairs, have been held in the entrance hall during the last few days. Mrs. Dwyer of San Francisco, who is among the late arrivals, is a pupil of Prof. Adelstein, and gave some fine mandolin solos.

Rev. F. A. Adams of Pomona, with Klein, "Veni Creator," Romandy, Mrs. Dr. Kannon; offertory, Raff's "Ave Maria," Mrs. J. J. Schallert, with violin obligato by Signor Romandy; postlude, "Coronation March," Mendelssohn, Prof. T. W. Wilde. The services begin at 10 o'clock.

A LOOK ABROAD.
Rubenstein refuses to come to America next season.

Sir Arthur Sullivan is said to be fast regaining his health.

Nordica is on the list for the grand opera season in London.

The famous band-master, Gillmore, gave a grand concert in Madison Square Garden in New York city during the first week in June.

Marie Millard, a daughter of Harrison Millard, the well-known song writer, has joined the DeWolf Hopper Company, which will appear at the Broadway, New York, this summer.

Camille Saint-Saens, the composer, has accepted the invitation of the World's Fair management to give a series of concerts at Chicago next year.

"Ed" Stevens, so well-known in San Francisco, made a great success in Dupree and Solomon's comic opera King Kago.

Mascagni, the famous composer of Cavalleria Rusticana, produced his latest success, Friedrich Fritz, at the Grand Opera-house, Philadelphia, on the 8th of June.

On June 7, McLellan & Kelley's comic opera, Puritania, was produced at the Tremont Theater, Boston. The scene is laid in Salem, during the witchcraft persecution. The music is said to be excellent and the costumes and scenery both artistic and historical.

A new opera by Edgar S. Kelley, called Puritania, was chosen for presentation at the Tremont Theater, Boston, by Pauline Hall and her excellent company. Mr. Kelley and his wife, also an accomplished musician, have many friends in this city, and Mr. Kelley's music has been studied with profit and delight here and in San Francisco, though he is as yet but partially known to the great generalities. It is, therefore, with especial interest that one reads the flattering words of the Boston press:

"As its name suggests, Puritania treats of the colonial times. The scene of its first act is Salem, its time the middle of the seventeenth century. Its libretto is a somewhat Gilbertian fashion the delight which the Salem took in imagining people to be witches and hanging them on the strength of their imagination. The maiden, 'Elizabeth,' is unfortunate enough to have turned the hearts of all the men with love which she does not re-act to have the liberty, except the com- munity of her jealous sisters. Little wonder is it that she is adjudged a witch and is condemned to die. The arrival of an English Earl, who at once falls a prey to her witchery, prevents the execution, and all hands sail for England, where 'Elizabeth' is freed from impending doom and marries."

So much for the plot, which is simple, but full of a Gilbertian humor in the libretto. The Transcript says of the music:

Enthusiasm is justified in speaking of Mr. Kelley's music. Here is a banquet of melody, each of which has its own flavor and is compounded with mastery skill. The composer's technical acquirements are great, but with a discretion rare among musicians in early essays on a high plane, he subordinates his science, making it only the handmaid of his art. And yet he is always economical with his material, and the French composers, except one, do not stand out as prominently as he. By this it must not be understood that he is restless. Indeed, he sets a worthy example to his American brethren in art with high aspirations, most of whom in their anxiety to avoid the commonplace, write hardly a measure without a modulation.

MUSICAL NOTICES.
The Hamilton Quintette Club will go to Santa Ana Saturday to assist at the Modjeska entertainment there in the evening.

The Arar Club was pleasantly entertained last Thursday by Mrs. Lillian Fellows Burdette at her lovely home on West First street.

A fine concert is in preparation for the benefit of the Free Kindergarten Association, to be given at one of the theaters on the night of July 6.

Mrs. Philip Gerhardt, who has remained here especially for the Drorak night of the S. M. Club, has gone north on an extended visit to her parents.

Miss Neally Stevens, the pianist, is in Pasadena, where she will pass the summer with her parents, after which she will start out on another musical tour.

Dr. Dorothea Lummis and Mrs. J. D. Hooker returned last Thursday from their Alaskan tour. The ladies were absent about twenty-one days, during which they had a most delightful time.

At the entertainment at Y.M.C.A. Hall on Thursday night, in charge of Mrs. Henry Ludlum, Miss Edith Gardner will sing "Expectancy," by Dudley Buck, and Raff's "Ave Maria." Miss Mary Pierson will play the violin obligato and also a solo.

A fine concert will take place this evening in Simpson Auditorium, under the direction of J. P. Dupuy, the following musicians will participate: Mmes. J. E. Murray and C. H. Linn, Misses Helen Widney, Lizzie Kimball, Ruth Hall, Lulu Pieper, Bertha Woodard, Lottie Douvan, Messrs. J. P. Dupuy, J. W. Miller, W. S. Williams, T. Wiesen-danger, H. L. Holcomb and H. W. Watson.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.
Vocal—"Love Me No More," L. Denza; "Loving Eyes of Violet Blue," J. C. Macey; "April Moon," H. Howard; "My Love of Long Ago," O. E. Wolfe. Instrumental—"For violin and piano," "Barcarole," C. Dancla; for pianos, "Beatrice Waltz," Theo. Mecklinja.

Satin Behind Them.
(Pomona Progress.)

It was part of the programme at the convocation of Good Templars held in Pomona recently to have a photograph taken of all those in attendance. The depot park with its beautiful sward and ornamental shrubbery and flowers was decided upon as the best place to form the group. So they proceeded thither in a body, a temperance army over 300 strong, accompanied by a photographer. The latter grouped them artistically, taking pains to avoid the concentration of too much beauty in one place—which is liable to produce strabismus on the part of the photographer. When everything was ready, each one was told to arrange his features for the eventful shot. This so engaged the attention of all that little heed was paid to a freight train that was backing down the track and came to a standstill in the rear of the group. The photographer pressed the button and the deed was done. Imagine the feelings of those Good Templars when they turned and saw standing just behind them and forming the background to their group a freight car with the sign covering its entire side, "John Howarth Brewing Company, Best Lager Beer." To be sure Satan got behind them, but he was in the picture, nevertheless.

LAY SERMONS.

Is it not strange that those things which are of the most sacred importance to human welfare the world does not care to have us speak to it about? How many are there in the busy everyday life of human affairs that would be grateful if we should go to them and talk with them about their soul's salvation? Why is it that human nature likes to put the solemn concerns of eternity out of its thoughts when, if it is all well between us and our Maker, nothing need trouble us? There is nothing to impart that "peace which passeth all understanding" like a hope in Christ. If we can only take into our souls a realizing sense of God's love for us, fear takes wings, doubt dies, and the fountain of hope overflows in our souls. "What time I am afraid I will trust in Thee." There is triumph in that utterance; there is a sense of safety and of refuge, and the billows of sorrow may surge beneath our feet, but we will trust, and trust means rest, security, undisturbed love overshadowing us, while underneath us are the "everlasting arms."

If men would only bring God into their daily life they would find His presence ample for their unfeeling joy. Does the flower droop when it is nourished by the rain and sunshine? Do our harvests fail when the clouds pour out their fullness and all the air is filled with the needed heat of summer? No more would our hearts grow cold or fail to yield the fruits of the Spirit if the eternal sunshine of God's presence and the dew of His grace filled our hearts. What we ought to be is every day Christians, always abiding in God, embodying His precepts in our lives, and taking our belief in Him into every act that we perform. The great trouble with the church is that now, as in the days of Bunyan, we have too many Mr. "Feel-meinds," and "Ready-to-halts," too many of the type of Mr. Despondency, and "Much-a-fraid." And yet the Christian has no business to be sad, and gloomy, and doubting, for all God's promises are His; all the riches of His grace; all the inheritance of glorious hopes, and all the joys of full and free forgiveness. And why should we hesitate to talk of these things? Why hesitate to invite lost and wretched sinners to share them with us?

If Christians lived up to their privileges, and to the abiding peace and joy which by right is their inheritance, they would ask no better evidence of the reality and the worth of Christian experience than this. As has been truly said: "Christ is not merely a teacher whose instructions we are to heed, not merely a leader whose example we are to follow, not merely a Saviour whose love avails from us dreaded and well-deserved penalty; He is a living friend, in whom we live and move and have our being."

The culminating doctrine of Christianity is the doctrine of the immanence of God; the doctrine that man possesses a spiritual faculty by which he immediately and directly sees, knows, recognizes and realizes God; the doctrine that God possesses a self-revealing power by which he imparts himself to the soul of the believer. All other Christian doctrines point up and conduct to this.

And with God thus revealed to the soul of the believer, what is there to hinder his companionship with Him? Every true believer who thus realizes God in his soul will walk with God and the Divine Spirit will breathe through his life and God will manifest himself through him to the world. Filled with the love of Christ the believer will not be at "ease in Zion." He can no more refrain from talking of the love and mercy of God than the flower can refrain from sending out its fragrance on the summer air, or than the sun can refuse to shine when coursing through the clouds of heavens.

You who know nothing of experimental Christianity, just test the truth of this for yourselves. Be honest, and remember that it is not fair or just for you to condemn Christianity till you have personally tested it. Come out on the Lord's side. Taste and see that the Lord is gracious, and if you find that religion is disappointing or unsatisfying, then may you cast it aside and seek some other way for happiness and peace.

And, Christian, don't you be numbered with the Mr. Ready-to-halt and Feeble-minded and Much-a-fraid and Mr. Despondency, who are found sometimes at Christ's feet. They are what they are because they do not fully trust, or because they are not doing all their duty as Christians. But just so soon as faith and works abound then will their joy be full, and the world will see it. Such a Christian's life will be a living gospel. Men will say: "Did you ever see anybody so joyous as that Christian? The love of Christ seems to be just as much a reality with him as the love of his wife and children. I believe it actuates his every impulse and controls every thought and action. There is no sham about such Christianity, and I would like to experience it myself." Christian, you can preach the gospel of Christ by living it, and if you live it not only your lives, but your lips will be full of it, and atheism will find fewer before you, and unbelief will find less shadow of covering in your presence.

THE COMMENCEMENT SEASON.

Exercises During the Coming Week—The High School Commencement.
The commencement season continues and grows and broadens until it engages the attention of a large part of the population. This week will see the graduation of the largest class the High school has ever presented.

THE KINDERGARTENERS.

The commencement exercises of the Los Angeles Training school for kindergarten teachers will take place on Tuesday evening, June 28, at 8 o'clock at the First Congregational Church, corner of Sixth and Hill streets. The exercises will differ greatly from other commencement exercises in the fact that the teachers will take the parts of pupils, being seated at tables. There will be three essays on leading subjects in the work, songs with gestures, a ball exercise, a lesson on flowers and a story. The graduating class, who have faithfully completed a two year's course of study, will be assisted by the young ladies of the training class who are just completing the first year's work. This is the first class to graduate in Los Angeles in this work. The training class is under the leadership of Mrs. Nora D. Mayne, a graduate of St. Louis, and of many years' experience in her work.

You sass me and i'll sass back —is what one lady told another last week when they both wanted the same goods—this was very "unpirtly"—if another merchant goes for us through the columns of the paper, it is not our policy to sass back—as the gentleman from Texas would say when another wanted to fill him full of lead, "It is not dignity, my friend, not dignity; don't do it; suppose the gun would recoil or bust; yes bust, it might spoil your complexion"—our way is to attend to our own "knitting;" it makes a fellow billious to get mad—you are sure of the best treatment, none better anywhere; this is our way; we have the best clerks in the city; they talk for us and we talk for them—let a fellow get excited over his favorite for president; he will talk an arm off and neglect his own work to get the other fellow a good fat job—if we say that was a fine sale you made, you are doing splendid, how the salesman will work on the next customer—it pays to treat people white; never kick a dog; never scratch a cat; the cat is the best scratcher; rub the fur the right way—if you buy any goods in this house, and if for any reason whatever you want to return them, do so and we will refund the money; that is rubbing the fur the right way—it is like the darkey that kicked the mule; when he gathered all of himself together he looked at the old mule and said, "guess, boss, next time i'll try oats"—we close Saturday nights; they will all do it after they kick the mule awhile—our clerks work better, they feel better and are better. we give them more oats and pay them the same money, and how they do smile when they get their pay—squarest methods you ever saw, and trade one-third larger than a year ago, fully one-third larger than a year ago—we "slam" "bang" away, first one way, then another, and in this way we catch the eye of the public; we get hold of new trade; they come in with silver dollars worth 75c to 90c and go out with a dollar's worth of goods; we make the sacrifice, and you get the benefit—next time you come to town, bring along some more 90-cent silver; we'll take it at par to accommodate you; most accommodating place in the city to trade in; trade one-third larger than a year ago, and growing like a "green bay tree"—one fellow said he read the advertisements because they were different from any one else; another fellow said he wouldn't write one like sheward because they are "rot"—the first fellow is a perfect gentleman, and if he ever runs for office he gets our influence; the other fellow wears his hat on one side, has patent leather boots, chews smartweed in place of gum, and patronizes all the free-lunch counters; his mother-in-law furnishes him with spending money, and he borrows the daily edition of "the times" to read our advertisement—we treat him well because it is our policy; it even pays us to treat this fellow right; he may get hard up some time, turn himself into a first-class gentleman, and then we will surely get his trade—come in and see how we do business under the new way—even if you don't buy anything we will be tickled to death to have you come and see us—if this ad. is not different from anything you ever read we will donate $100 to any charitable institution in the United States; this is the only thing that is not original.

it is no longer

a question about how to enlarge the cloak department; that is a settled fact—how soon can we have the room?—the cloak department will be doubled in size—the space occupied by the shoe department will have a magnificent showcase of very large proportions—the space occupied by the cheap muslin underwear tables will be carpeted and fitted up in fine style for the display of elegant cloaks—the shoe department will be closed entirely, and with this object in view we shall make prices at once to bring about the quickest results.

a fine line of dongola kid and american french kid oxford ties, all widths and all sizes; regular $3.00 and $4.00 goods, a splendid bargain. now $2.50 ladies' dongola kid oxford ties, opera toe and tip or common-sense; regular $3.00 quality. now $2.00 plain talk at the prices quoted; they are exactly factory cost, and the prices are made, as we say, to close the shoe department and enlarge the cloak department—we expect a big rush, as every one knows that reynolds bros.' shoes are the best in the world for the price—any shoe dealer that is lucky enough to get the exclusive sale of reynolds bros.' shoes will make a lucky hit—no one can say one word against the shoe or the way reynolds bros. treat their customers.

the crowds are headed this way—you can see it in the large increase in every department—trade one-third larger than a year ago—fairest place on earth to trade—money refunded on all goods not perfectly satisfactory—selling out the shoe department at factory prices.

any person

buying one of the cloaks displayed in our show window for $5.00

on Monday next can return the goods if they are in any way dissatisfied and the money will be refunded, and in addition to this we will give 10 per cent. more than the price paid—squarest place on earth to trade.

with all special sales of this house there will be but one way—if we advertise a sale at a certain hour in the day not an article will be sold one minute before—no goods can be selected before the time—no goods will be laid aside for any one; all must have an equal chance to purchase the goods—if any one is dissatisfied with their purchase they may return the goods and we will refund the money—the squarest place on earth to trade—there can be no favoritism shown; one customer's money is as good as another's.

a favored few that made it a point to get in at the opening of the store had a decided advantage in securing the best values at a special sale—our mammoth cloak sale will be conducted so that all may have an equal show—the sale will commence promptly at 9 o'clock—no goods will be taken out of the window one minute before, and all will have an equal show—there will be a crowd.

to obtain one of the cloaks advertised the customer must be on the floor—it must be paid for at the time of purchase—a deposit will not secure one; none will be laid aside; none can be selected before 9 o'clock—the goods are worth from $8.00 to $18.00—the squarest place on earth trade.

there is a growing impression that the business of this house is showing an enormous increase—why not?

to obtain a cloak at the price advertised the customer must be on the floor—none will be laid aside—none can be selected before 9 o'clock—all will be taken out of the windows at the same time and all will be placed on sale at once and in the presence of the trade—squarest place on earth to trade—trade one-third larger than a year ago.

280 North Main Street, adjoining First National Bank,
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Democratic ratification last night being a free show, had the effect of considerably trimming down the size of the audience at the Los Angeles Theater, but as the attendance on the two preceding nights of the engagement of Little Puck was phenomenal, Frank Daniels has little to complain of on the score of his reception here, which was a fitting close of a remarkably successful season. It is understood that Mr. Daniels intends, provided he can find one to suit him, to shelve Little Puck, and put on a new play next season; but it will be a difficult matter for him to procure one so admirably adapted to his peculiar talents as that which has stood him in such good stead for the past few years, and he will find it more difficult to efface from the minds of his admirers his admirable impersonation of "Puckingham Giltedge," however well he may interpret a new character. Most of the members of the Little Puck company leave for the North today, and several of them have already accepted flattering offers from San Francisco managers to appear during their vacation. Among the players who will appear at the Grand Opera-house, presenting their highly-praised colonial drama, The Witch, a play that is entirely out of the beaten track of modern stage representations. Miss Frohman, who in this play will make her first appearance on the Coast, is one of the youngest of American stars, and has only been on the stage for the past three seasons. She made her professional debut in May Blossom at the famous Madison Square Theater success, and immediately established herself in the public favor. She began her first touring tour in a repertory of plays comprising Parthenia, King Rene's Daughter, Fusee, Charms and Snow Bound, and her success was such as to lead her to attempt a bolder venture. Accordingly she produced, on the 10th of November, 1890, the quaint and original play, The Witch, in which she is at present starring. This play was written to order for Miss Frohman, she herself suggesting the main incidents and general scope of the work. Her acting in the play is said to be marked by that breathless silence and emotional attention which only great artists can command.

The Witch is quoted by the leading papers of New York and Philadelphia as the best American drama yet written. It is founded upon incidents fraught with the deepest interest—the witchcraft delusion in Salem, Mass., in 1692, and it affords a complete change from the surfeit of melodrama and farce-comedy that have been rampant for a number of years. The story of the play is intensely thrilling. The scenery is in keeping with the play. It shows localities in Salem that have become famous through the witchcraft panic. The play is under the direction of Gustave Frohman, who was the manager of the Madison Square Theater during its palmiest days. Monday evening, on the occasion of the 425th performance of The Witch, the ladies on the lower floor will be presented with sterling silver "witch" souvenir spoons, made in the old witch town of Salem, Mass.

Stellon, the well-known critic of the New York Commercial Advertiser, thus reviews the outlook for the ensuing season: "The number of new stars and new plays in course of preparation for next season is something interesting to contemplate. And a Presidential election year, too. Many of them will start in early as to get used to the brass band and torchlight free shows the politicians are already arranging in the vicinity of the Presidential race. The season is very likely to begin early. It is so long since the past term closed, and it was so profitable, as a rule, that many poor actors and actresses with the summer were over, so that they might once more get to work and earn the wherewithal to keep the wolf from the door. The last year, the secretary of the Actors' fund told a sad story of the suffering among the members of the theatrical calling. There is no business, apparently, that has so many allurements for men and women as the players' calling, and there are few which require so many qualifications to make a respectably good actor. Men and women, regardless of the fact that they are not fitted by either nature or intelligence for the stage, beset managers for engagements. The market for actresses and actors is overstocked with incompetents who think in their vanity they can act. Notwithstanding this glut in the market the coming season will bring forth another crop of aspirants for historic honors—people who had better devote their attentions to some other business more within the range of their fitness and intelligence."

STAGE Gossip.
A. W. Pinero and Harry Arthur Jones are at work on plays for Daniel Frohman. Sarah Bernhardt has painted a landscape that will be exhibited at the World's Fair. Modjeska intends producing Henry VIII in the fall, herself playing "Queen Katharine." Margaret Mather will make a California tour next season under the management of M. J. Leavitt. J. K. Emmet is having his entire wardrobe for Fritz in Ireland made in Dublin of the real Irish frieze. Florence St. John will return to the London Gaiety in Fast Up to Date, with a provincial company next month. It is said that Mrs. W. J. Florence contemplates having The Mighty Dollar rewritten and that she may appear in it. The daughter of Col. John A. McCaull has decided to go upon the stage. She is 13 years old and is said to be very pretty. Lawrence Canley, a young English actor, who was last year in Australia, will be leading man of Margaret Mather's company next season. The early debut is announced at the Paris Opera Comique of an American girl, Alga Ritalia, who is described as a veritable musical phenomenon. The French play without words, Le Statu du Commis, has been successfully produced at the Prince of Wales Theater in London as an afternoon attraction. It is among the possibilities that Charles Hawtree and his London company may come over next season to do the travesty of Oscar Wilde's play, Lady Windermere's Fan.

The play, it is announced, has been translated into French, German, Dutch and Italian. The success of Miss Helyett at the Columbia Theater, Chicago, is so pronounced that what was to have been a limited engagement has been extended indefinitely. Henry E. Dixey returned to the comic opera stage last week, appearing as the "Lord Chancellor" in Indiscretions, which opened the summer opera season at the Globe Theater, Boston. Wilson Barrett will not bring his entire company to the Coast next season. His leading lady, Maud Jeffries, only will accompany him, and the remainder of his support will be furnished by Stockwell's stock company. D. H. H. the comedy which has achieved so much success as a laugh-provoker during the past two years, will make another tour of the country next season under the management of George W. Sammis, who owns the rights to the play for this country. Traveling for actors is being continually made more luxurious by broad-minded managers. Joseph Jefferson in a large measure led the way, and Charles Kean's stock company will enjoy the luxury of life on a private hotel-car during their Pacific Coast tour. They left New York yesterday and will make their first stop at Salt Lake.

Agnes Burroughs, a bright young actress and coming dramatist, last season with Janushek's company, is at work on a play which is said by those who have read the acts already completed to indicate unusual power and ingenuity. She is a sister of Marie Burroughs (Mrs. L. F. Masson), of A. V. Palmer's stock company, and is as attractive as she is clever.

CRIME AND CRIMINALS.

Both Burke and Ryan are Professional Burglars.

The Officers of the Opinion That the Alleged East Side Rape Story is a "Fake"—No Trace of the Fugitive.

It has transpired that John Ryan and Jack Burke, the two burglars arrested by Police Officer Connolly, and Harry Martin, who were taken in by Detectives Benson and Bowler, are three of the hardest cases in the burglar line that ever operated on the Coast.

The three men were arrested a week or ten days ago on suspicion. A lot of old silverware was found in the possession of the suspects and while the detectives were confident that the three men were thieves they did not succeed for some days in locating the owners of the property. When they did they found that the crooks had robbed a house at Long Beach. After that discovery there was no trouble in making out a strong case against the suspected thieves.

The case came up for preliminary examination before Police Justice Owens yesterday afternoon and all three men were held in the sum of $5000 bail each for burglary. That the men are old time crooks there is not the slightest doubt, for Chief Glass received a letter from Chief Crowley of San Francisco yesterday giving the record of two of the men. Chief Crowley says that Ryan was sent from San Diego in October, 1887, under the name of C. H. Desmond, for burglary. Again on March 9, 1889, he was given four years from San Francisco for burglary. He was released on the 11th of last March and at once returned to his old occupation.

On the 10th of April, 1888, Burke was sent up from Ventura county for highway robbery and was released from State's Prison on the 10th of March last. Both men have been criminals on the Coast for a number of years, and have been in almost every jail on the Coast for petty offenses. Chief Crowley has not been able to locate Martin, but there is no doubt but that he has a pal of Ryan and Burke, and if he has never before received a term in State's Prison he will certainly get a dose this time.

THAT RAPE CASE.

Clever Harry Johnston and Little Gertrude Heinzer's Story.

Deputy Constable Harry Johnston has been busy since the warrant for the arrest of the fiend who is supposed to have brutally assaulted the little 15-year-old Gertrude Heinzer on the East Side a few days ago. Early yesterday morning he arrested a half-breed Indian, who answered the description exactly, and was sure that he had the right man.

The prisoner was taken before the child for identification as soon as possible, and, much to the detective's surprise, she stated that the prisoner was not the guilty party.

A medical examination of the girl shows that no attempt has been made to outrage her if her story about being tied hand and foot be true, for her arms and legs do not show that they have been bound in any manner whatever.

The officers and detectives are now of the opinion that she has not been outraged, and that the whole story is a dream on her part.

THE WEISDANGER CASE.

The Real Estate Operator Arrested and Admitted to Jail.

Yesterday afternoon T. Weisdanger was arrested on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, a full account of which appeared in yesterday's Times. He was taken before Justice Austin of the Police Court and gave bail in the sum of $1000 for his appearance in court on Tuesday next.

Mr. Weisdanger was interviewed by a Times reporter and stated most positively that he is innocent. He says he can show beyond a doubt that he has been agent for several years for the land in dispute, and he will prove on the trial that he had a perfect right to give a lease.

Mr. Weisdanger has been a resident of this city for a number of years, and he has always borne a good reputation.

Criminal Notes.

There were six plain drunks in the Police Court yesterday, and they were given from three to fifteen days each in the chain gang, notwithstanding the fact that each of them had been informed by His Honor that they were engaged to ride in the Democratic procession last night.

Fred Clark, who was arrested several days ago for stealing a plank from T. M. Coulter, was convicted in Justice Owens's department of the Police Court yesterday and got 100 days in the chain gang.

C. W. Miller was arrested last evening by Officer McClain for beating a Chinaman named Fou Chong. The Chinaman was also locked up so that he will be able to appear in court tomorrow when the case is called for trial.

From a Buffalo paper it appears that Crandall, the insurance swindler, is still posing as a dime-museum freak, as announced in The Times several days ago, and is proving a drawing card; so much so that he was reengaged for another week by the museum manager at an increase over his $200-a-week salary.

THE COURTS.

A Verdict Reached in the Gibbs Case.

The Defendant Acquitted by the Jury After Short Deliberation.

Affecting Scene in Court on the Announcement of the Decision.

Frank Hamlin and the Brewery Syndicate—The Suit Over the Possession of the Premises in Dispute—General Court Notes.

The trial of the case against ex-Councilman Thomas A. Gibbs, upon the charge of having obtained money from Herman Zuber by means of false pretenses, was concluded yesterday. The closing argument was made by M. E. C. Munday, Esq., for the defendant, and Assistant District Attorney McComas for the prosecution, and at 11:45 o'clock the matter was finally submitted to the jury. That body soon afterward was taken out to lunch and nothing was heard from it upon its return until 3 o'clock, when Deputy Sheriff McIntyre, in response to a knock on the door of the jury-room, inquired whether or not the jurors were ready, instead of asking them the usual question as to whether or not they had agreed. Upon receiving a reply in the affirmative the custodian of the jury notified the clerk that they had agreed and, after waiting thirty minutes for Judge McKinley, the jurors filed into the courtroom. In response to the usual query by the Court as to whether or not they had agreed, Foreman Todd, to the surprise of all concerned, announced that they had not. Judge McKinley curtly said: "Why, I understood from the clerk that you had agreed. You may return to your room, gentlemen."

"But, Your Honor," said Foreman Todd, "there is no possibility of our coming to an agreement."

"I'll talk to you about that tomorrow, gentlemen," replied the Court. Mr. Sherrett take the jury back to their room."

The faces of the jurors expressed dismay at this unexpected turn of events, as they slowly filed out again; but those of the defendant and his wife, who had apparently been suffering from nervous tension, lit up with a faint smile of hope at the news imparted by the juror.

At 4:30 the jury again came into court and asked for further instructions with reference to the deed from Gibbs to McKay, when Judge McKinley instructed the jurors that if the Court had decided that Gibbs had any interest in the land in controversy the title to all the property described in that deed would have been in Gibbs. The jurors again filed out, but three minutes later returned with a verdict of acquittal. They having taken the oath that Gibbs believed, at the time he made the deed, that he had a good title to the land.

An affecting scene ensued upon the delivery of the verdict. The defendant, whose heart was too full for utterance, walked over to the jury box, and, brushing away the tears that were in his bedimmed eyes with one hand, he grasped the hand of each juror in turn with the other. This duty done, he turned to his wife, who, in excess of joy, was crying and laughing at one and the same time, and, forcibly repeating her husband's tear-stained face, embraced her, and both wept silently, locked in each other's arms, for a few moments. Hastily recovering himself, however, Gibbs shook himself together and turned his attention to his attorneys, while his wife, with an effort, composed herself by attending to her baby, a chubby little fellow about 18 months old, who was crowing and chuckling with satisfaction at being restored to his mother's arms.

HAMM AND THE BREWERIES.

The case of the San Francisco breweries, limited, vs. Frank Hamm, an action to recover rent due for the premises on South Spring street in front of the Welland saloon, used by defendant as a ticket office, came up for hearing before Judge Wade yesterday morning, and resulted in judgment for the plaintiffs therein for the restitution of the premises, the forfeiture of defendant's lease, $50 rent, $50 damages and costs by default. It being subsequently shown, however, that the defendant had filed an answer late on Friday afternoon, the default and judgment were ordered vacated and set aside.

Court Notes.

Upon motion of counsel for defendant Judge Smith yesterday morning deferred the passing of sentence upon Charles Pinard, recently convicted of having permitted his wife to remain in a house of prostitution, until Wednesday.

The appeals in the cases of J. T. Copeland and George S. Mullally, both of whom were convicted of violations of the anti-liquor ordinance at Pomona, not having been perfected, Judge Smith yesterday morning ordered that they be dismissed upon the motion of counsel for the respondent.

In Department Three yesterday morning Judge Wade tried the case of the Pickering Land and Water Company vs. C. W. Buchanan et al., an action to foreclose a vendor's lien on lot 2, block 14 and lot 10, block 23, of Whittier, and ordered judgment for the plaintiff therein in the sum of $1039.84, by default.

Charles Edward Huber was granted a decree by Judge Wade yesterday morning divorcing him from his wife, Mary A. Huber, on the ground of desertion.

The defendant in the case of the Union Loan and Trust Company vs. Thomas Fagan, an action to foreclose a mortgage, having allowed the matter to go by default, Judge Wade yesterday ordered judgment for the plaintiff therein in the sum of $845 and interest, as prayed for.

Proceedings have been commenced by R. C. Coleman to obtain a divorce from his wife, Margaret Coleman.

IN THE SUIT of $400 in foreclosure against Dunham, which is now on, it was stated that it was understood that no one was to be in the matter, and that Randolph is the party owning the property.
